CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM WILL OPEN SUNDAY

Noted Chicago Evangelist To Preach; Choir of 200 Will Sing.

2 PLAYS BILLED MONDAY

Magician and Escape Artist To Close Entertainment Thursday.

On the eve of Marion county's annual Chautauqua, Chairman Karl Schell announced today that interest is greater than at any time in recent years. "A good program has been arranged and, judging by the fine response of Marion county residents, the 1931 assembly will be one of the most satisfactory ever held at Garfield park," Schell said today. The pavilion here is one of the finest in all the central states. Chautauqua backers are planning a return enthusiasm that marked the programs of 10 or 15 years ago.

200 in Chorus

Sunday's opening is considered ideal from the standpoint of general interest. Two hundred singers will take in a program preliminary to an address by the nationally famous Chicago evangelist, Paul Rader. The official opening of the Chautauqua will be at 8 p. m., when the local committee presents George G. Whitehead of Columbus as platform manager.

The Monday, July 20, program will feature two plays by the Salisbury Players who are well remembered in Marion. Their 2:30 p. m. offering will be the sparkling comedy, "Her Husband's Wife." The story involves a young wife, of pessimistic tendencies, who is constantly taking remedies for imaginary ills. The real fun develops when she attempts to choose her husband's second wife.

Monday, starting at 8 p. m., the Salisbury Players will present Channing Pollock's success, "The Enemy," which, by the way, is not a war play, but the story of a great love, involving such people as are seen on any street of any town.

Good Tuesday Program

Tuesday's honors are divided between the Arcadia Novelty company, in 2:30 and 8 p. m. programs, and the great animal performance by Pamahasika's educated pets. The Arcadians, headed by Miss Dorothy Dyer, are girls of exceptional talent, vocally as well as instrumentally. Miss Dyer's piano-accordion has entertained audiences in every nook and corner of North America, during her career as a professional artist.

Apparently Pamahasika's pets, slated for a performance starting Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. answer the question, "Do birds and animals think?" Among the novelties to be introduced by George Roberts, the director, will be Princess Levita,

BANKS TO AID IN TAX COLLECTION

Rural Residents May Make Payments in Own Localities Next Week.

Marion county banks next week will cooperate with County Treasurer Bert J. Shelton in the collection of June taxes. Tax bills for several townships will be mailed to banks best accessible to residents of each township, and taxes may be paid at the banks designated.

The Caledonia bank will take collections from Claridon, Scott and Tully township taxpayers Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Montgomery, Bowling Green and Grand township taxpayers may pay taxes at the Campbell bank in LaRue Thursday and Friday, and the LaRue bank in LaRue on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Salt Rock township taxpayers will be accommodated at the Moral bank Wednesday and Thursday. Waldo township residents may pay at the Waldo bank Thursday and Friday, and Green Camp township taxpayers may make payments at the Peoples bank in Green Camp on the same days.

The Prospect-Citizens bank will accommodate Prospect township taxpayers Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Marion county taxpayers have paid $335,983.45 during the June collection to date, Treasurer Shelton said today. This figure is $87,023.37 less than collections at the close of business July 17 a year ago, when the collection figure stood at $423,006.82.

German Statesmen in Paris for Loan Parley

Financial Fate of Former Enemy Nation at Stake in Government Heads' First Visit to French Capital Since War.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, July 18—The arrival of the heads of the German government for the first time since the end of the World war was awaited today with the belief that the financial fate of Germany if not all Europe hangs on their meeting with French statesmen.

Should they fail to agree on the conditions for credit assistance as laid down in the French salvage plan the negotiations would be protracted, it was believed, and might result in the cancellation of Monday's seven-power conference in London.

Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius will be received by Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, and will hear directly for the first time the guarantees which France imposes on her participation in what is understood to be a $500,000,000 loan from the reserve banks of France, England and the United States.

VAN ORMAN PILOTS ONE

Winners of First and Second Compete in International Trials.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., July 18—Pilots competing in the twenty-first renewal of the National elimination balloon race were busy today inspecting their bags in preparation for the take-off from the Akron municipal airport at 5 p. m. tomorow.

Three civilian and three service entries will compete for the P. W. Litchfield trophy and a chance to represent the United States in the 1931 international race from a site not yet selected. First and second place winners qualify for the international event with Ward T. Van Orman of Akron, automatically qualified through winning last year's world contest, rounding out the American team.

One former international and two former national title holders are included in tomorrow's field. Ed. J. Hill, veteran Detroit balloonist piloting the entry representing radio station WJR, was winner of the 1927 international.

Lieutenant T. G. W. Settle, chief of the navy inspection bureau at the Goodyear-Zeppelin plant here, is handling the navy entry. He was winner of the 1929 national.

Frank Trotter and Roland Blair, winner of the 1930 national are again flying the Goodyear-Zeppelin entry. This year Trotter ranks as pilot and Blair as aide.

Captain Karl S. Axtater, pilot of army balloon No. 1, and Lieutenant Edgar M. Fogelsonger, pilot of army balloon No. 2, both have participated in previous national events. L. P. Furculow, who pilots the Del-mar-va eastern shore association bag, is making his first appearance in a balloon race.

The racing bags will be laid out this afternoon and inflation with natural gas will start tonight.

POLICE SUMMONED TO A. B. FALL HOME

Trouble Develops as Picture Men Seek To Photograph Start of Prison Trip.

By The Associated Press

EL PASO, Tex., July 18—Police were called to the home of Albert B. Fall here last night after Mrs. C. C. Chase, his daughter, had been struck by a large piece of concrete which she said was thrown from the direction of a group of photographers near the Fall house.

The police said that when they arrived the former secretary of the interior was sitting in a chair with a shotgun across his knees.

The missile struck Mrs. Chase a glancing blow on one leg, but its force was broken by small limbs of a tree and by her dress. She said she had been watering flowers. Police were unable to find the person who threw the concrete.

Photographers have been attempting to get pictures of Fall as he left for the New Mexico penitentiary at Santa Fe to serve a sentence of a year and a day. Plans for departure were closely guarded.

TWO STATES CARRY ON IN "BRIDGE WAR"

Blockades Established on Texas and Oklahoma Red River Front.

UNABLE TO FIND JUDGE

Seek Order To Remove Barrier in Fight Against Toll Bridge.

By The Associated Press

DENISON, Tex., July 18—A dusty detour, an absent judge and a tractor were the principal factors of interest in a war of the bridges" today along the Red river front separating Oklahoma and Texas.

Hundreds of travelers used a detour via Preston and Madill over a free bridge there while the question of whether a free bridge newly built or a toll bridge should be used between this city and Durant, Okla., remained unanswered.

Of the latter structures, the toll bridge was open on the Texas side, but blockaded on the Oklahoma; the free bridge was open at the Oklahoma end, but barricaded and guarded by Texas rangers on this side of the river.

Search for Judge

Officials of the Red River Bridge company, operators of the toll span here were expected to continue their search for District Judge Porter Newman at Durant, who was reported "out of his office" all yesterday afternoon while they sought to remove by court action the blockade placed by Oklahoma highway employes.

The tractor was called in by the highway crews when they learned they could not "tear up the roadbed" to the toll bridge in accordance with orders of Governor W. H. Murray of Oklahoma without more powerful equipment than was available.

Governor Murray ordered the free bridge thrown open to travel Thursday in defiance of a federal court order in Houston, Tex., which had tangled plans for a joint opening July 1. Governor Ross Sterling of Texas, barricaded the Texas approach to the free bridge.

New Bridge in Use

Traffic moved freely over a new bridge between Ringgold and Terral, paralleling a toll bridge. This bridge was opened Thursday. Another free bridge, between Gainesville and Marietta, remained inaccessible because the Texas approach was not completed.

Development of the situation followed a long campaign to rid the two states of toll bridges. Construction of the free bridges came after purchase of the pay spans proved not feasible.

In Houston the federal court suit pending would restrain the Texas authorities from opening the Denison-Durant structure at this end until consummation of an agreement under which the state would pay the bridge company $150,000.

34 GIVEN TAGS FOR OVERTIME PARKING

Real Estate Dealer Holds Record with Five Traffic Tickets.

Overtime parkers in the restricted zone, provided half of the traffic cases during the week, according to the traffic docket in the office of Municipal Court Clerk John Powell. Of the 68 tags given out by the police in their war on traffic violaters this week, 34 were for parking overtime in the time limit district.

John W. Klinefelter, real estate dealer, at 122½ south Main street, holds the record for receiving the greatest number of tags for the overtime parking offense. The docket shows that he has received four tags this week and one last week.

Included in the remaining 34 cases, were nine for failure to stop at stop streets, two for parking in front of a hotel, and one each for crashing a red light and for parking in front of a theater. A fine of $5 was paid by the crasher of the red light while fines of $1 and $2 were assessed against the remaining violators who could not produce a satisfactory excuse for their violation.

SEES MENACE TO RAIL BONDS

Securities Valued at Nearly Six Billion Endangered, New Yorker Says.

RATE HEARING WITNESS

Possible Market Collapse Pictured from Roads' Inadequate Earnings.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 18—Testimony that railroad bonds having a par value of $5,748,500,000 might be removed from the legal list of securities because of inability of the roads to earn fixed charges, today was given the interstate commerce commission.

Fairman R. Dick, of New York, testifying in the hearing by the commission of the railroads' petition for a 15 per cent rate increase, said an analysis of the railroads having gross incomes of $10,000,000 in 1929 showed that only 21 of them on the basis of figures thus far this year would earn their fixed charges of 1.50 or more. Dick is chairman of the security holder's committee of the railroad emergency.

"The disastrous effect of the removal of so vast a volume of securities from said legal list upon the credit of the railroads and their future financing is apparent," he said.

He added that out of the situation would grow the imminent danger of a general unloading of railroad securities upon an already depressed market.

"The disastrous consequences of such a liquidation cannot be exaggerated," Dick said, adding that the result might be so complete a disruption of the market as cause a collapse of prices "comparable to the worst panic days."

"This would visit losses of millions of dollars upon beneficiaries of trust funds, many of whom are absolutely dependent thereon," he said. "It would at the same time occasion so complete a destruction of confidence in railroad securities as investments as might well cause many large investors to adopt a definite policy of refraining from purchasing them in the future."

LIGHTNING KILLS SEVEN PERSONS IN OHIO STORM

Two Men, a Union County Farmer and Carey Resident, Lose Lives; 4-Day Heat Wave Broken as Mercury Tumbles.

BOLT STARTS $2,000 FIRE NEAR CLARIDON

Temperature Goes to 98 Here To Equal High Mark for Year Set Thursday; City Gets .82 of an Inch Rainfall.

A Union county farmer and a Wyandot county resident are among the seven Ohioans killed yesterday by lightning in a series of electrical storms which swept the state. Although the storms left heavy damage and loss of life in their wake, they broke the back of the four-day heat wave which also had taken a heavy life and damage toll.

Electrical and thunder storms played above Marion intermittently yesterday and last night. Hail accompanied the storm in the eastern part of the county, damaging crops.

The storm last night caused some damage in Marion. Wind caused most of the damage. A door propped open at the Milo Pipes grocery at 599 Mt. Vernon avenue, was blown shut at 7:30 p. m., breaking a double-strength 24-54 inch glass. Shingles were blown from several barn roofs near Marion, but the damage was slight.

The damage last night, added to the lightning damages early Friday morning in which a pony was killed and several chimneys were destroyed.

A pony at the D. J. Shelton residence on the Richland pike was killed by lightning. Considerable damage was done to the chimney of the Daniel LaMaccine home in Vernon Heights when it was struck. The top of the chimney on the home of Norris B. Head at 252 north Seffner avenue, was taken off in a clean cut, about 18 inches down from the top.

Big Four railroad signal system was damaged last night by an electrical storm near Sidney shortly after workmen had repaired like damage in the vicinity of LaRue, caused by the storm Thursday night.

Lee Wertz, 49, of near Carey, in Wyandot county, and William Henry, 69, of near Plain City in Union county are the lightning victims in this district.

A bolt of lightning started a $2,000 barn fire on the Oscar McKibben farm south of Claridon last night. Another flash struck the Monnett Memorial hospital at Bucyrus, starting a small fire.

CONSUL HELD ON RUM CHARGE

Mexican Diplomat Quickly Released in Oklahoma To Prevent Ill Feeling.

IMMUNE FROM ARREST

Two Others Taken at Same Time Cleared by City Officials.

By The Associated Press

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 18—Quick action by city officials to prevent the possible creation of ill will between Mexico and the United States today has wiped from the police blotter charges of violating the prohibition law filed against H. Valdes, Mexican consul here.

John McClelland, city manager, called a conference soon after it became known the charges had been filed and the city authorities announced last night that the incident was closed so far as they were concerned.

Similar charges against Miss Kay Barrett, nurse and sister-in-law of Senor Valdes, also were ordered dismissed.

Three members of the police liquor squad said they found in Miss Barrett's home 46 pints of beer and eight gallons of beer mash and that Senor Valdes was at the home when they made the search.

Although the search was made Monday night, Senor Valdes and Miss Barrett were not taken to police headquarters until late yesterday.

They were released on their own recognizance. A warrant for the search was issued by Mike Foster, municipal judge, who was to have held a hearing in the case this morning.

Albert McRill, municipal attorney, said it would have been impossible to obtain a conviction against Valdes because of diplomatic immunity.

Miss Barrett attributed the search of her home to "prejudice against Senor Valdes" by "narrow, petty-minded neighbors." Both denied the officers had presented a search warrant.

The consul said the officers poured out the beer over his protest. He related that he was visiting at the home of Miss Barrett with another couple and "we were drinking beer and eating sandwiches when the officers walked in."

"Senor Valdes' wife, Miss Barrett's sister, died two years ago.

RUSSIA GETS NEW INDUSTRY

Machine for Manufacture of Synthetic Cotton To Start Production.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 18—Synthetic cotton is about to be produced in Soviet Russia.

Perfection of a machine which "cottonizes" rough bast fibers, converting them into manufactureable textiles, is announced by the institute for experimental research.

The announcement follows closely publication of Russia's plan to increase its output of actual cotton to the point where imports will be unnecessary by next year. Development of the cotton substitute would provide cheaper textiles to augment the production of cotton goods, vast quantities of which are needed by the population.

The new machine, called a decorticator, uutilizes flax, hemp, mandyr and ramee fibers which grow extensively in many sections of the Soviet union and are far harder than cotton which requires certain climatic conditions.

With it, only 30 minutes are required for the cottonization" process, which consists of separating the fiber from the plant stem and breaking the long fibers into short, fluffy "cotton" after a series of baths which removes the pectines. The expensive, time-consuming "retting" process is elminated in the conversion of such fibers, which formerly required 30 days and therefore was considered economically impracticable.

Alexander Krasnoschekov, chairman of the trust for new textile fibers, said experts expected to obtain 20,000 tons of "cotton" from the bast fibers in 1932. Toward this end 25,000,000 roubles (about $12,500,000) has been appropriated for the development of 17 factories during the next six months. Distribution of 400 decorticators to as many collective farms also is contemplated.

Their father, Hesequio Ramos, is director and pianist, and their beau brummel brother, Rafael, is a violinist. These artists first became known in America through their radio concerts from station WEAF in New York City. CLARENCE H. MACKAY WEDS OPERA SINGER

Postal Telegraph Co. Executive and Anna Case United in Church Wedding.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 18—Clarence H. Mackay, chairman of the board of directors of the Postal Telegraph & Cable corporation, and Miss Anna Case, concert soprano and for eight years a member of the Metropolitan Opera company, were married today at St. Mary's Catholic church, Roslyn, L. I.

Only members of the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom were present, including the bride's mother, Mrs. Peter Van Nuys Case of South Branch, N. J., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs Irving Berlin, and Mr. and Mrs. John W. Mackay. Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Berlin are Mr. Mackay's daughters and John W. Mackay is his son.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Vincent Donovan, assisted by the Rev. Edward C. McManus. Miss Case was confirmed in the Catholic church a month ago, by Cardinal Hayes. She formerly was a member of the Dutch Reformed church. Mr. and Mrs. Mackay left for a motor trip immediately after the ceremony.

Mr. Mackay and his daughter Ellin became estranged after her marriage in 1926 to Irving Berlin, who began his career as a singing waiter and became one of America's foremost composers of popular music. It was said the father's disapproval was based on difference in religious faiths. Although the Mackays were prominently identified with the Roman Catholic church, the Berlins were married at the municipal building by a city clerk.

Mrs. Berlin and her father became reconciled two years later after the death of Mr. Mackay's mother, in fulfillment, it was said, of the grandmother's wish.

Showers brought about a 21 degree drop in temperatures here yesterday after the year's high mark of 98, established Thursday, had been equalled. Rainfall measured .82 of an inch. The lowest temperature recorded last night was 67, the lowest since Monday night when the mercury dropped to 65.

Partly cloudy weather with local thundershowers this afternoon or tonight, little change in temperature today and generally fair Sunday is the official weather forecast.

Wind and hail combined to work havoc in ripened grain fields in the eastern part of the county yesterday afternoon. A hail stone is reported to have broken the windshield of an automobile belonging to the state highway department as it was going through Claridon. Trees were blown down.

DIVORCEE ACQUITTED ON MURDER CHARGE

Cheers Greet Verdict Freeing Ohio Woman Accused of Saying Officer.

By The Associated Press

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 18—Mrs. Edna James, 27, divorcee, was freed today of first degree murder charges in connection with the death of Patrolman Raymond Castner, who was found shot in her room last April.

After three hours of deliberation last night the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty." As the verdict was handed down the crowded courtroom clapped its hands and cheered. Mrs. James, with tears streaming down her cheek, threw herself into the arms of her chief counsel, Hugo Chestosky, and shook hands with each juror. As she grasped the hand of the foreman, F. M. Lisle, he said: "This is your big chance, girl! Go straight from now on."

Pressed by the crowd, the woman who escaped a verdict that might have sent her to the electric chair collapsed and was carried from the room.

The state tried to prove that Mrs. James had shot Castner when he attempted to end a love affair between them. She said the patrolman had fired at her when she refused to give him money from a joint bank account they held, and then probably shot himself when he thought he had killed her.

Despite a 3-hour grilling to which she was subjected yesterday afternoon she steadfastly denied she had shot him.

Safe-Crackers Get 15 Cents for Trouble in Office Here

Safe-crackers who last night wrecked a small safe in the office of The Continental Coal Co., at 232 Carhart street, obtained 15 cents for their trouble, a check at the office of the coal company showed this morning. A small package containing papers of no value to any but the company, was also taken.

The door and front of the safe was wrecked by the explosive which police said was apparently heavy enough for a large safe. Since no one in the neighborhood could be found who heard the noise of the explosion it is believed the burglars selected a time for the work when the storm was at its height, depending on the thunder to cover the noise of the explosion.

Entrance to the office was gained by breaking a lock on the front door and although the place was ransacked, nothing but the 15 cents and the papers was taken. The robbery was discovered by employes when they opened the office this morning. A small section of wire apparently used in firing the charge, an ax and several wrenches were found by the police near the safe.

COLUMBUS CITY JAIL HOUSES MURDERESS

Mrs. Maude Lowther Awaits Death Penalty in Tilby Smith Case.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 18—A cell at the Columbus city jail today held Mrs. Julia Maude Lowther, 23-year-old quarter-bred Indian, sentenced to die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary Oct. 2, for the slaying of Mrs. Tilby Smith, wife of her former lover.

Mrs. Lowther, mother of a seven-year-old son, was brought here late yesterday from Ashtabula where she was convicted of plotting the murder of Mrs. Smith a year ago. Accompanied by Sheriff C. H. Blanche and his wife, the convicted murderess first was taken to the penitentiary for admission as a prisoner.

She answered the routine questions quickly, showing no emotion except for an occasional tightening of the lips or a suppressed sob. The formalities over, Mrs. Lowther was removed to the city jail, there to await the time she must re-enter the big state prison to be the first woman ever to die in the electric chair. No woman prisoners are kept at the penitentiary.

Mrs. Lowther, pale from her long incarceration since the slaying of Mrs. Smith, can look out over the Scioto river and west Columbus from her jail. But tall buildings will hide her view from the penitentiary where Tilby Smith, husband of the slain woman, awaits death for the same crime.

At her trial, Mrs. Lowther told how Smith prompted her to hide along a lonely Ashtabula county road and send a bullet through Mrs. Smiths body as she sat in a truck with her husband at her side and a baby in her arms.

"I'M THROUGH," SAYS "MA," DROPS NAME

So Another Romance in Aimee McPherson "Novel" Ends in California.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, Calif., July 18—Mrs. Minne Kennedy-Hudson, one time Angelus Temple leader and the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, today lopped off her name at the hyphen. She dropped what she had added just 29 days ago when she became a June bride in a moonlit midnight marriage to Rev. G. Edward Hudson in Longview, Wash.

"I'm through," she said, "I have my own life to live. From now on I'm the old 'Mother' Kennedy that used to be."

Their romance shattered by a divorce action filed here yesterday by Mrs. L. Margaret Newton-Hudson and the announcement by County Prosecutor Cecil C. Hallin at Longview that he was preparing to ask the extradition of Mr. Hudson for alleged bigamy, the bride and bridegroom became quite matter of fact.

"I'm glad to know Mrs. Newton places a fairly high price on Mr. Hudson," said Mrs. Kennedy, commenting on the other Mrs. Hudson's petition for $200 a month temporary alimony, $5,000 final, alimony and $500 attorney fees.

"Needless to say there will be no money forthcoming from me. Before our marriage Mr. Hudson voluntarily quitclaimed all rights to my real estate and properties, assuring me that it was myself only he cared for. I have filed for annulment and if the other lady considers herself his wife, I'll gladly relinquish him."

Hudson, to whom Mrs. Kennedy often referred with the expression what a man!" defended himself in an interview.

"Mrs. Kennedy knew about me before we were married," he said. "I told her everything."

Boy Confesses Selling Liquor To Make Living

By United Press

CINCINNATI, O., July 18—A 15-year-old boy from Logan, W. Va., calmly told in detail to officers here how he made his living by bootlegging for two years.

The boy, Bob Lowe, and two companions, William Vance, 16, and Joseph Bryant, 22, both of Logan, were held as suspects after an auto was wrecked on a highway near here. The boys said the auto had been stolen in Huntington W. Va.

Bob said his parents died two years ago and he then turned to bootlegging. He said he made weekly trips with an auto load of moonshine from Kentucky into West Virginia. He bought the whisky for $3 a gallon and sold it for $5. He said a customer list of 18 persons bought the liquor, according to Lowe.

ADAMS DISCHARGES NAVY RESERVE MAN

Acts Against Philadelphia Patrolman for Improper Use of Uniform.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 18—The navy today hoped for a promise that its uniforms will not be used again by Philadelphia police in prohibition law enforcement.

After ordering the discharge of one naval reserve officer allegedly used a service uniform in a liquor case, Secretary Adams asked Rear Admiral Bostwick, commandant of the Philadelphia naval district, to confer with the mayor there "to secure his cooperation in preventing a recurrence of this episode."

Charle P. Lang, Philadelphia policeman, is the reservist who reputedly wore a chief petty officers uniform in arresting two men for violating the Pennsylvania liquor laws at the Broad street station last June 27.

Secretary Adams ordered an investigation and his action was based upon reports transmitted to him. In the letter to Admiral Bostwick, ordering Lang's discharge, Adams said:

"The use of a naval uniform by the local police who are not members of the naval reserve or any other unauthorized persons in the manner employed by Lang is not only contrary to statute law but is highly objectionable to the navy department."

Had Lang not been discharged from the naval reserve, he would have been subject to court-martial on a charge of misusing the naval garb. Conviction would have meant dishonorable discharge with a sentence of imprisonment. Adams is out of town for the week-end, but it was said he did not feel the offense was serious enough to warrant court-martial.

JURY PROBE LIKELY AS SHERIFF RESIGNS

Irregularities Reported in Accounts of County Official at Portsmouth.

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., July 18 — Special grand jury investigation of the office of Sheriff Maurice J. Caldwell, whose resignation will be effective tomorrow, appeared a possibility today.

That the grand jury would be called was indicated by Prosecutor Cameron Meacham and county commissioners as they examined his official expense accounts in an effort to uncover reported irregularities.

The sheriff, under fire several times since he took office in 1923 has been acquitted on a charge of accepting a bribe, and an indictment charging embezzlement has been nolled.

The sheriff's resignation, handed in yesterday, was hastened, officials say, by the discharge of Deputies Al Bridwell and Arthur Coates, who were popular.

Last fall a count of votes revealed his defeat for re-election by fifty-six, but a recount showed a victory by twenty-one.

The department also reported an increase of 2.7 per cent in building construction employment in 20 representative cities and 2.1 per cent payroll increase to a total of $1,-455,426 against May's' $1,454,934.

The 3,423 firms reporting for the pay period ending June 15, counted 49,564 employes, against 48,264 in May.

The average decrease in living costs was put at 6.5 per cent.

Wholesale prices dropped 1.7 per cent in June to 70 per cent of the 1926 levels, used as the basic 100 index for 550 commodities weighted according to their importance.

"Miracle" Image Again Appears on Chicago Wall

By United Press

CHICAGO, July 18—Thousands of persons flocked today to a building on the southwest side where a mysterious image of a woman and child were said to have appeared faintly outlined again upon a wall, and this time without an explanation.

Residents of the neighborhood said the image appeared again last night and that it was not a shadow cast from a lace curtain in the apartment of Sam Genna, a gangster.

Much excitement was caused earlier this week when the "miracle" appeared for several nights. Thousands of persons crowded about the wall, trampled lawns and knelt in the street to worship. A policeman broke up the gathering by pulling down a shade in gangster Genna's window and causing the "miracle" to disappear.

When the figure reappeared last night, more than 2,000 persons gathered. A covering was placed over the Genna window across the street, but believers in the "miracle" declared the figure was still there.

Others declared the light upon the wall was not an outline. Arguments developed. During the general melee that followed, Rego Clorlieri, 17, was stabbed by an unidentified Negro who escaped. Physicians said Clorlieri probably would die from the wound.

Meanwhile, newspapermen who were informed that the Genna home was in darkness when the figure reappeared, rushed back to the scene to find a new explanation. None was found.

Sues for $450

When Schneitzer and others allegedly failed to perform their obligations under the contract, Schaaf sued for $450, the amount of both commissions, according to Schaaf's petition in error. Judge William R. Martin gave Schaaf a judgment for $225.

When the case was carried to the common pleas court, Judge Martin was sustained by Judge George B. Scofield. Now Schneitzer seeks to have the judgment reversed, charging that part of the contract is of punitive nature, and other alleged errors. Schneitzer is represented by Attorney J. D. Williamson. The law firm of Carhart & Warner is counsel for Schaaf.

The second case coming from municipal court is statutory action against Roy Neal, brought by Fannie Hildreth. When the case was begun in municipal court, Judge Martin sent the case to the common pleas court, after a written examination had been taken. When the case came up for hearing in common pleas court, the examination papers could not be produced, and the common pleas court was without jurisdiction to act without the papers. Judge Scofield sustained a motion dismissing the case without prejudice, permitting Fanny Hildreth to start the case anew. However, Neal's attorney objected to overruling the motion without prejudice, and he has now carried the case to the appellate court.

Neal is represented by J. W. Jacoby. Attorney L. E. Myers is counsel for Fanny Hildreth.

Third Case

The third action slated to go before the appellate court is the error proceedings of the Osgood Co. and the Alloy Cast Steel Co. against Lydia Arthur, an action for damages. She obtained a verdict for $8,812.50 for injuries sustained in a traffic accident at Olney avenue and Columbia street on Nov. 27, 1928. She sued for $50,000 in her petition. Reversal of the verdict is sought by the plaintiffs in error. The Osgood and the Alloy Cast Steel Co. are represented by the law firm of Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant. Cattey & Cobb of Crestline represent Lydia Arthur.

Parents Blamed for Fears and Dislikes of Children

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 18—Mothers should cease to shrink from spiders and fathers should learn to like spinach.

For only by such methods can a child's horizon be kept clear of fears and dislikes, in the expert opinion of the children's bureau.

Adult responsibility for little children's bug-a-boos and foibles is stressed in a study soon to be published by the bureau. "The Child from One to Six, His Care and Training."

"When a little child shrinks from caterpillars or spiders because his mother does or dislikes cereal or spinach because his father does, the grown-up has 'suggested' this dislike to him," the treatise declares.

Result of Imitation

"Fears and dislikes being as imitations of the feelings of others they are not inherited. Most children are easily influenced by suggestion.

"Take it for granted suggest that a child will not cry when he tumbles, that he will do as he is told, eat what is set before him, take his bath without a fuss.

"A mother who expects trouble usually gets it. When Willie is told 'Come in this minute, you've got to get your bath, and there's no use arguing,' he feels the tension in the air and disobedience is suggested to him.

"But 'Willie, as soon as you've run your train around once more we are going to get all cleaned up before supper' suggests something pleasant and is much more likely to bring obedience."

Warning Issued

Against fear-tension the bureau issued a special warning.

"Some homes are full of fears, fear of 'what people will say,' fear of burglars, fear of disease, fear that 'something awful is going to happen.'

"Parents should teach a child enough about danger to enable him to safeguard himself, without filling his mind with unnecessary fears and anxieties."

Three permits were issued during the week, one for a garage to cost $50 and two to remodel dwellings at a cost of $300. Any marked increase in building activities in the city this year is not being anticipated by builders, who believe that building will continue to follow pretty much the same volume the remainder of the year.

THREE NEW DETOURS APPEAR NEAR HERE

Fifteen Miles of Route 47 from 30 South to Richwood Most Extensive Project.

Three new detours in this district are listed on the state highway detour bulletin for the period July 18 to 24. All three are outside Marion county.

Resurfacing of Main street in Mt Gilead has closed short sections of state routes 42 and 61. Good paved detours are provided.

Surface treatment of the Belle fontaine Richwood road from Richwood to Summerville necessitates a detour which is six miles longer than the original route, but which is well paved.

A 15 mile section of route 47 from route 30 south to Richwood is being resurfaced, creating a detour over a good gravel road four miles longer than the original route.

The 12-mile section of the Columbus Sandusky road or route 98 between Waldo and the Harding highway is still closed while the road is being resurfaced.

A short detour is necessary on the Marion Upper Sandusky pike where a section of the road is being resurfaced and a bridge is being built.

Wheat Crop Yields 42 Bushels to Acre

The first wheat threshing of the year in Grand township was reported by G. H. Crim on the John D Guthery farm near Marseilles Thursday and Friday. Nineteen acres were threshed, yielding an average of 42 bushels to the acre.

Local Churches To Close As Evangelist Preaches

Paul Rader of Chicago Gospel Tabernacle Will Address Marion Audience at Opening of 1931 Chautauqua Season Sunday.

The spotlight of church interest Sunday night will be turned to Chautauqua pavilion at Garfield park where Paul Rader, famous Chicago Gospel Tabernacle evangelist, will speak at 8 p. m.

Union services have been suspended for this occasion and most of the outlying churches will not hold services Sunday night in order that the congregations may hear Mr. Rader.

Unique Career

Mr. Rader, the man who turned from prize-fighting to preaching; the western plainsman who became religious author and publisher; the Chicago Gospel Tabernacle evangelist who conducts services every night of the year and whose private radio station WJBT operates from 9 a. m. until midnight every Sunday; this evangelist of the fundamentalist school will be heard here for the first time when he and a union choir of 200 voices open the 1931 Marion County Chautauqua.

According to those familiar with Paul Rader's work in Chicago, his tabernacle audiences run well into the thousands at every service. His auditorium, built of steel and concrete, seats more than 5,000 people, and overflow audiences are the rule rather than the exception.

One of the world's largest pipe organs has been installed recently, and the Gospel Tabernacle band, under the direction of Richard J. Oliver, is known across the continent, as a result of their weekly broadcasts.

Mr. Rader writes and publishes hundreds of thousands of pieces of Gospel literature each year, practically all of which has free distribution. He also publishes a monthly magazine, "The Courier."

Huge Mission Fund

Vitally interested in foreign missions, Mr. Rader established last year an annual missionary budget of $50,000. It is estimated that the amount will reach $100,000 this year. The evangelist, himself, makes frequent missionary tours to the Orient. In his absence on such trips the Chicago tabernacle is conducted by his personally selected leaders and a staff of 50 loyal employes.

Mr. Rader, admittedly a fundamentalist who believes the Bible the "inspired word of God, from cover to cover," has drawn the fire of modernists on many occasions. It is said that he "out-Sundays" Billy Sunday in platform dynamics, and that his stories of his early career, especially as a pugilist, are genuine thrillers.

Coming directly from Chicago, Mr. Rader will spend Sunday in Marion, preliminary to his night appearance at Chautauqua. He has announced as his subject, "The Great Love Story."

W. C. T. U. SPEAKER

REV. H. E. WILLIAMSON

Accepting the invitation of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Upper Sandusky, Rev. H. E. Williamson, pastor of Oakland Evangelical church will speak at union services in that city Sunday night. He will speak on prohibition.

Rev. Clyde Wendell will preach at Oakland church in the absence of the pastor Sunday night. Rev. Wendell also will preach at the Likens Chapel M. E. church north of Marion at 11 a. m., supplying for Rev. T. J. Maxwell who is on a vacation.

A Notion Counter

A SERMONETTE

REV. WAYNE EIKENBERRY
Assistant Pastor, First Church of Brethern

SOME time ago I wandered into one of the five and ten cent stores of our city and much like the ordinary individual I didn't really know what I wanted more than just to see what was to be seen. But as a rule when going into a store if I am undecided, the appeal of things is so strong that I generally make a small purchase regardless of the need or the value of the article.

The thing that generally persuades the supposed customer to purchase under such circumstances is the attractiveness of the display. However, back of this is a type of motivation that the buyer is not conscious of; that is the manager's unique system of advertising.

In this particular instance my attention was immediately taken by a sign that read: "Notion Counter." I paused for a moment and then I thought: "Notion Counter," how unique, in fact it seemed to be an actual characterization of myself.

The secret of the advertiser is to appeal to the individual in order to motivate quick action. What a splendid bait for the American people who are so full of notions and who oftimes act without any previous thought.

I am not discrediting this system of advertising; it is fine, but why not carry it a little farther. The facts are that only a small per cent of the world's population really do their own reasoning. We don't have to, it's done for us and this is possibly the results of our scientific age. A Utopian system of social organization is fine and has its place, but why not build a road between actual reality and idealism.

If we are so prone to fall for trivial things, those things that appeal to us because of the thinking and guidance of someone else, I appeal to our leaders and writers today to make the teaching of the "Sermon on the Mount" (Matt. 5:7) real and practical.

You can sit on one side of the mountain and have a notion what is on the other side, but unless that notion is motivated by action to get to the other side you will never see.

A great military leader in the person of Napoleon so motivated a haggard army that they were victorious at the battle of Austerlitz.

The gap between reality and idealism can only be closed by leaders whose advertising is unique and practical.

DRY WEATHER CUTS BERRY CROP SHORT

This Week-End Will See Wind-Up of Season Here, Dealers Say.

Markets during the week were free of unusual features. The week saw the close of the berry season. The dry weather has done much to bring about a premature closing. Even early in the week when berries should have been plentiful, the supply was scarce. A few black raspberries and blackberries were on the markets nearly all week, however, and the price held at 20 cents for blackberries and from 25 to 30 cents for raspberries.

The latter part of the week found the berries still scarce although Friday saw them becoming slightly more plentiful. A few red raspberries were on the markets yesterday and today that were selling at from 30 to 35 cents.

The hot weather has proven a stimulate to melon sales. Dealers report heavy sales of both watermelons and cantaloupe. The price of both showed but little change all week and the quality has been consistently good.

The middle of the week found green vegetables scarce due to the dry weather. Peas were few and those that did come on the market were of inferior quality. Both green and wax beans were also less plentiful. The latter part of the week found peas becoming more plentiful, however, and the quality better. Potatoes were cheaper this week, dealers asking as low as 25 cents a peck for good quality stock.

BANK FIGURES UP

An increase in bank clearings of approximately $40,000 this week over last, was shown in a check made of figures at the clearing house today. No particular reason for the increase other than just the natural fluctuation of business, could be given by the bankers. This week's clearings were given as $291,652.19 and those for last week, $251,495.36.

For Sunday, July 19

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds fortuitous auguries for affairs of church, ecclesiastical pursuits and persons and for labor, industry, and employment generally. Rewards for diligence and steadfastness may be expected. But contentions and passionate indulgences should be avoided and writings carefully handled.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of substantial recognition for their fidelity, persistency and industry. There may be promotion and preferment, with growth of real possessions. Quarrels, impetuosity and indulgences should be shunned. A child born on this day should be patient, hard working and practical, but may be disposed to be quick tempered and passionate in its conduct and speech. With these under restraint it should make a success in business and employment, attaining solid place in life with real possessions.

Poor Jules Verne, Will Says, as He Reads of Post and Gatty Flying Around World in Nine, Not 80 Days

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers. And this hot weather the last few weeks, every paragraph in the paper is prostration. Then came along the Fourth a couple of weeks ago, and that with its firecrackers, drownings and auto accidents just about got what the heat had left. But if things don't pick up it don't make much difference anyhow. But they seem to think this debt thing is going to help some of 'em out—some of 'em. Well it's kinder lonesome around the Rogers Ranch (not really a ranch, but we call it that; it sounds big, and don't really do any harm) Mrs. Rogers and Mary, that's the daughter that just become a young lady right while I was looking at her, she turned 18 and I swear it don't seem 10

I was playing in a vaudeville theater in Huston, Texas. It was the opening matinee, and I got the telegram of her arrival. She was with her mother and her mother was at her old home at Rogers, Ark A beautiful little town in the edge of the Ozarks, on that wonderful White River, great summer resort all around there. We didn't have any home, we was just living in theater dressing rooms, and raised in trunks. That was before I knew there was such a thing as a Ziegfeld Follies.

Lacking in Color

The Act then was mostly roping, and a good deal of jokes, in fact the same ones I am still using. Roosevelt was my best bet in those days. He was the best known public man that ever lived, and they kept up with everything that he did, so when you started in talking about something that he had just said or done, you dident have to stop to tell what it was before going ahead with your comment Our Public men nowadays havent got near as much color as the ones then had People are not interested enough in the ones nowadays to read what they are doing, which generally they aint. But they are pretty able I guess at that

But what I started out to say was that Mary and her Mother have gone on a little trip over to Honolulu. Mary had heard that the dance Orchestra's over there were especially good so she wanted to make sure. I was working on a Movie and couldent get away. I would like to go to that Honolulu some time. I just come by there one time many years ago, on my way from Australia. But I do hate that boat trip. If I could fly over I would go tomorrow, if I could get this Gatty and Post to take me over. Those boys did a great Job, dident they? I wish I could have gone to Okla when they welcomed them there They asked me to come, I would like to meet them, and the old fellow that backed the trip. It will be a long time before that record is beat You wont get another combination like that.

Poor Old Jules

Such a Navigator, and such a Flier, and they cant get any better ship. Just think' clear around the World with one Motor Then you find people that are afraid to go up for an hour with three motors How in the deuce did they do about all that loss of sleep? If I miss two hours sleep I am dopy for the next day or so I would have gone to sleep right in some Russian Reception Committees whiskers, and when it would have come time to get up and take off again, I would have left the record remain with Jules Verne in eighty days, and even that was imagination. Poor old Jules he must have had a relapse when he heard them flying over his grave

We hear a lot now about the World becoming little, but I tell you its plenty big yet It will be a long time before we know much more about each other than we do now. And I guess it will be just as well we don't Just think of those Boys flying away up in Siberia. That's where we used to see the pictures of these Wolves jumping up at those sleighs and the Horses had something like a high yoke up over his neck Well, these old boys got enough altitude that no old wolf couldent jump at them You know too, those Russians were mighty nice to these Boys when you consider that we don't give them much the best of it We think they are running their Country cockeyed and I guess its mutual at least it about be

Now don't get the idea that a plane is new in Russia, for they have a fine aviation system I made a little part of this trip that these boys made That was I flew from London to Berlin, then to Moscow in 1926 They made practically the same jump and when I landed in the afternoon in Moscow in a commercial plane single motor I was the only passenger, and the air was full of planes training and we had to circle the field several times before we got the signal to land Now that was five years ago I bet these boys saw many a plane in Russia They have aviation societies over there that are maintained by the members, not the government They all throw in a small sum each and that goes to buy planes and fields and training fliers It's a patriotic thing like we donate to our Red Cross or some other charity You know those rascals along with all their cuckoo stuff have some mighty good ideas If just part of 'em work they are going to be hard to get along with Just think of everybody in a country going to work I don't mean just the ones that want to work but I mean everybody

Too Satisfied

What they mean by work is to produce something to be of some benefit to the whole Community Just look at the millions of us here that tonight we havent done a thing today that helps the country or that helps anybody We have just gone along and live off of it, and we are just "lousy" with satisfaction of ourselves Just think what we could do over here if we All worked Dont get scared I am not putting this in as a Plan But we must admit that other things being equal the Nation that works and saves and dont let the profits go into the hands of a few thousand or million men They are going to be dangerous competitors We cant just laugh it off We prospered for years on nothing but our natural resources. Well they have got twice as much of anything as we ever had before we used it up. Its a terrible way to live, and do, but you cant beat hard work, sacrifice, and unlimited resources. Its liable, if it does just even half way work out, to have us winging on our foreign trade. But thats for Mr. Hoover and Pat Hurley to worry about. I am sleepy, goodnight.—Copyright, 1931, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Dr. F. R. Mann, City Park Head, Writes of Vacation Trip On Ocean Freighter

Although on a vacation tour which is taking him from Philadelphia to Seattle, Wash, by boat, Dr. F. R. Mann, local dentist and chairman of the park board, still has the interest of Marion parks in mind In a letter received today by The Star, Dr. Mann said he stopped several times on his motor journey to Philadelphia to visit city parks, and in some cities found a brand of park patriotism which he hopes to develop in Marion.

After motoring to Philadelphia with his family, Dr. Mann and his son, Frank, Jr., left as guest passenger on a freighter which headed south for the Panama canal, with its route extending up the west coast to Oregon and Washington. The boat will return by the same route. Following are excerpts from Dr. Mann's letter, which was written off the coast of Mexico and mailed in San Diego, Calif.

Visit Other Parks

"On our way to Philadelphia, we stopped quite often to visit city parks I was very much impressed with the civic interest shown in the parks, shown by gifts of fountains, pools, summer houses, etc Many of these were marked by the name of the donor. Here is an idea I hope we can sell to Marion with the betterment of our local parks in mind.

"We sailed from Philadelphia, Monday, June 22, about 10 p. m. and for several hours watched the myriad of lights along the Delaware river. Seasickness affected both Frank Jr and myself when we were at sea, but this feeling soon passed and the trip became very enjoyable

"We passed close to San Salvador where Columbus first saw land, and then neared Cuba and Haiti where from the ship one could see many native huts up on the hill sides and a few hardy native fishermen in small sail boats 20 miles out Here we saw our first flying fish a peculiar little swimmer that took to the air like a bird and then seemed to hit the water like a stone.

Reach Panama

"Wednesday morning, we came to anchor inside the breakwater at the Panama canal At daybreak we had our first close view of tropical lands I think the first thing I saw was a palm tree At the canal everything is operated by the government Each ship is towed to the dock unloaded, towed to ward locks with a pilot and a crew of Jamaicans aboard who take the ship through to the Pacific side where they are taken off in a small tug boat

"As our ship expected to be in for only a couple of hours we hurried ashore to see as much of Colon as possible It is a typical old Spanish city with very narrow streets, now paved and with underground sewers Side walks all covered with the second floor where natives seem to live somehow; we saw no houses as we know them. Just across a railroad in Cristobal in the canal zone are beautiful cement buildings of our government and of various shipping companies surrounded by huge tropical trees and shrubbery in full bloom Here were our first cocoanut palms and banana trees also a beautiful shaped tree full of mangoes They are said to be delicious but didnt go over so big with us

Marion Plays Part

"We moved about noon and were soon entering the first lock of the Gatun group where there are three steps up to 85 foot elevation where you can look down over the tops of houses and get a wonderful view of the beginning of the jungle

"After several hours, you come to the lake and the part of the canal that is of especial interest to one from Marion, O Here is the Gambon Reach and the Gaillard cut in which were used many steam shovels made in Marion

"A tropical storm later overtook us blotting out the view, but we had seen enough to make us proud of the good old U S A proud of the part Marion played in digging this canal and the part the government took in changing this fever-ridden jungle into a health resort, for its death rate is lower than Marion's."

Brides, Benedicts To Get License Same Old Way

The manner in which marriage licenses are issued in Marion county will not undergo any decided change next Thursday when the new five-day marriage license law goes into effect, Probate Judge Oscar Gast said today.

Five Days Notice

The new law specifies that "application for a marriage license must be made by the parties to the marriage not less than five days and not more than 30 days before a license shall be issued," but tempers this provision with another clause which says "that for good cause shown the probate judge may waive the provisions of this section with respect to the period between the application for and issuance of a marriage license, and may grant such license any time after the application therefor."

As long as the parties asking for a license shall be issued," but citizens of the county, it will not be difficult to show "good cause" for waiving the five day provision Judge Gast said. In other words, no known residents of the county applying for a license in a regular manner will be required to wait five days for a license, but will be granted a license immediately on application.

Halt "Gin Marriages"

The law was passed by the last legislature with the intention of reducing the number of "gin marriages" or cases where marriage licenses would be issued to persons under the influence of liquor. It has been the practice in probate court here, Judge Gast pointed out, to refuse licenses to persons who did not appear to be entitled to permits to wed.

Reports from other sections of the state indicate that probate judges generally will follow this policy.

WILL HELD INVALID

Document Found Tampered With, Refused by Court.

A woman who tampered with her will after it had been drawn and signed died before learning that the tampering made the document invalid.

The will this week was refused admittance to probate by Probate Judge Oscar Gast.

After the will had been completed and signed on Nov. 9, 1925, the names of two beneficiaries were crossed out with a pen, and new names were written above the old names. Then a narrow strip of white paper was pasted across the blotted names of the original beneficiaries.

As the will has been refused probate, the estate will be disposed of in the manner provided by law in cases where no will is made.

Daily Proverb—"Advice like water takes the form of the vessel it is poured into."

In one way or another, "Ma" Kennedy has suffered such bad luck in her affairs of the heart that, unless she is an exceptional woman, she is liable to become discouraged.

Two army planes collide at San Antonio, Texas, and four fliers are killed. Wouldn't you imagine that in all the sky there was enough room for two planes to fly without getting together?

A dispatch from New York City states that Mayor Walker was five minutes early, one day recently, in keeping a luncheon date, which recalls the axiom that it is the exceptional which constitutes the news.

The home of a citizen of Memphis, Tennessee, has been invaded by burglars fifteen times during the last two years. He must have acquired exceptional fame as a maker of "the real stuff."

We are glad to believe it a statement of fact, but so much friendly newspaper publicity is being given to the statement that Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt is physically strong and able to endure the hardships of the presidency, in the event of his nomination and election, that it may have a tendency to cause some to question the statement.

The leaders of the various parties in Spain are said to have agreed to the election of Zamora to a five-year term as president of the new republic, from which it may be seen that the program of the revolution has been running true to form.

From London comes the news that the historic Canning jewel, fashioned by the Italian rennaissance artist, Benvenuto Cellini, has been purchased for $49,000 by an American woman for presentation to a "nationally known" museum. The sex of the purchaser precludes a possible suspicion that we have become a museum patron.

July 13 the gold stock of the United States reached $4,965,000,000, the highest point in the history of the country, which goes to show that a gold reserve can not be taken as an index of a country's prosperity. We are suffering a period of depression despite the possession of the world's greatest store of gold, while France, with the second biggest stock, has been enjoying unusual prosperity.

Borah on Cancelling War Debts.

Senator William E. Borah, of Idaho, effectively undermines the specious argument of the war debt cancellationists in a recent issue of Collier's. His article commands attention.

Cancellationists say: "The entire foreign debts is not worth as much to the American people in terms of dollars and cents as a prosperous Europe as a customer." That argument is based on a consideration of $20,000,000,000—the approximate amount owing to the United States under the provisions of the Young plan.

Senator Borah drives directly at it with this question: "What use would Europe make of the benefits flowing from cancellation?" Has the American taxpayer any assurance that a debt settlement such as the cancellationists urge would be so utilized as to be an economic advantage throughout the world?

Mr. Borah argues with conviction in the negative of the question. He points out these facts:

"The treaty of Versailles carries the statement that the disarming of Germany was brought about to render possible the initiation of the limitation of armaments of all nations. Twelve years have passed and this pledge is unredeemed. Europe is an armed camp, with Germany the most handicapped tent.

"Europe's taxes have increased. Why? To assemble more military and naval strength, chiefly.

"Present treaties among European nations would not be changed by cancellation. Present irritations and jealousies would continue. The spirit of fear that has kept Europe shackled with armaments for centuries would not be wiped out by cancellation. Germany would still feel itself the oppressed nation; France would still be eager to protect itself from Germany. Until deep-seated conditions in Europe are changed, cancellation of war debts by the United States merely would release more money for armaments."

For the present, the great body of American citizenry will be willing to accept Senator Borah's point of view and reject the cancellationist point of view. Europe has its eyes fixed on its burden of annual war debts payments—approximately $400,000,000. It does not see what shows up so large in the American perspective—an annual expense for arms of $5,000,000,000, representing a seventy per cent. increase since the World war. Cancellationist

Pleasing to Americans.

The recent address of Secretary of Labor Doak before a gathering in Alexandria, Virginia, must have proved pleasing to every citizen of the country worthy of the designation, American, to whose attention it came. It was a scathing denunciation of the organizations and individuals who seek to prevent the deportation of aliens who have entered the country illegally or of aliens who have committed criminal acts since their admission, and he was especially emphatic in voicing his scorn for any and all organizations which aid aliens who "advocate by speech or in writing the annihilation of our democratic form of government."

Referring to the deportation of 18,600 aliens during the last year, to say nothing of many thousands who left the country to escape deportation, Secretary Doak said:

"Many of these aliens who were deported were affiliated with organizations whose announced purpose is to overthrow the government of the United States by force and violence.

"To prevent the deportation of aliens of this kind the energies of certain individuals and societies are directed. There are persons and societies in this country who sneer at the word 'patriotism.' They believe and preach that a man has a right to advocate by speech or by writing the annihilation of our democratic form of government and to go untouched of the law.

"It has been a puzzle to me to learn upon what ground these organizations and these individuals base their reasoning. There is nothing American in it, nothing democratic. They aid these preachers of violence with their appeals to the courts and then if the courts uphold the orders of deportation they descend upon the department of labor with this plea or that plea for a change in the deportation order.

"In the first instance they base their pleas on the right of a man to say anything he wants in defiance of the statutes, but when these pleas are ineffective in the courts they quickly resort to some plea which they think has a humanitarian touch."

Though pleased with the tenor of Secretary Doak's address, we would have been far more greatly pleased had he gone further and named the organizations he denounced. Possibly he figured that the newspaper-reading public has by this time become acquainted with their identities and that, owing to that fact, specific utterance was not necessary. This may be true, but even though it may be true, we believe it was a mistake on the part of the secretary, a mistake commonly made in denunciations of the disloyal groups and writers which infest the country. To the perpetuity of our form of government, to all government, they are far greater menaces than the criminal aliens who are deported.

Secretary Doak promises that 20,000 aliens will be deported this year. It is a matter for regret that that total will not fully be made up of those who directly work for the overthrow of our government and those who aid and abet them and would estop their deportation when they come within the coils of the law.

The state criminologist of Illinois says that most of the drivers in the penitentiary of that state for manslaughter are handicapped mentally by low intelligence or physically by being crippled. That's not a bit hard to credit, particularly the low intelligence end of the proposition.

Apropos of the Tariff.

As a rule, the unqualified critics of the tariff get by because they are mad all over about the subject anyway, and no one cares to brave their blind rushes. The tariff is wrong, they say, and there's an end to that.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, last week, laid a cool hand on these implacable ranters, and tried to calm them down by reason. "Now is the time to be specific," he told them. "The time has passed for mere generalities. If you prefer political to scientific revision, would you have congress, for example, reduce the duties on long staple cotton, cotton goods wheat, dairy products, vegetable oils and galoin? I specify these items, as I could specify hundreds of others, because, as I am sure you realize, the tariff consists of items, not generalities."

A day later another cool hand was applied to mad-all-over tariff foes; this time by Representative Hawley, of Oregon, joint author of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act. Commenting on the charge that tariff has killed foreign trade, Representative Hawley said:

"As a matter of fact, foreign trade has decreased only to the same degree that domestic trade has decreased, and for the same reason." Actually the tariff has had no effect in causing the depression, he asserted.

These are, of course, politically-inspired messages, but they are well grounded. There really is more than a little illogicality in being tremendously mad about something if you can't explain the reasons why. As Senator Watson advises, it is time to be specific.

These stories about a thirty-foot monster having been seen cavorting about in the waters of Lake Erie are coming from so many different sources up that way that they almost justify the assumption that there has been a let-down in the quality of the goods of the rum-runners.

That Crystal Lake Story.

It was decidedly surprising to read in Friday's Star the advertisement of the Crystal Lake people offering a reward of $100 for the arrest and conviction—which we take to mean information leading to the arrest and conviction—of the party or parties who have started a report that the water at Crystal Lake park is impure and causing infection.

It has long been a matter of general knowledge, and is at present, that the water in the bathing pool at Crystal Lake park is fed by springs, is exceptionally pure, and is changed daily. There probably isn't a natural swimming place in Ohio with a purer supply of water or one in which the water is kept purer.

What possible motive there could be for the circulation of such an utterly unfounded report is a mystery, not only to the park management, but to citizens generally. The circulation of such a report might most easily be

NOMINATING GENERAL SIR JOHN.
G. C. O. B., Etc.

What the United States needs in the forthcoming negotiations over the debts and the later negotiations over disarmament is an American diplomatic agent who may be counted upon to represent the interests of the United States with singleness of purpose, a man who can not be won over by social favor and who will not be detracted from his purpose by the blandishments of Europe's hospitality.

A careful search through the record of recent American diplomacy offers few names which can stand the test. However, there is one man who has been subjected to all the pressures which European diplomacy has devised and who stood up against them manfully and successfully. That was General Pershing. He breakfasted, lunched, teaed, dined and week-ended with them all, and they didn't get his army away from him. In the process he received substantially every star, decoration, medal and title which was available. He is already General Sir John to the British, and the French have nothing to offer him, with or without palms, which hasn't been hung around his neck already on a wide red ribbon. If he pinned all his decorations on his blouse they would cover it back as well as front like a coat of mail, and there would still be a few grand cordons left over which he would either have to fasten on the seat of his pants or leave on the bureau.

General Pershing, it may be said, stood up like a stone wall because he knew that the man who commanded the American troops was going to get into the history books as the man who won the war, and he resolved to be that man. That only emphasizes the general's qualifications for the forthcoming diplomatic exchanges. He might be the one American envoy to grasp the idea that a reputation is to be made in American history not by playing the other fellow's game, but by playing for an American victory.—Chicago Tribune.

THE PROBLEM OF PLENTY.

The wheat harvest, just beginning in Ohio, was commenced June 1 in Texas, crossed the state line and traveled over the big fields of Oklahoma like a prairie fire. It will continue several weeks in a northwesterly direction in the United States and well up into Canada.

The tremendous crop in this country will be augmented by the production of Russia, Argentina, Australia and some other countries. The total may not be more than sufficient to supply world necessities, but it greatly exceeds the purchasing power of the people in some parts of the world.

Under the circumstances the disposition of the 200,000,000 bushels of wheat bought by the farm board and held by the Stabilizing corporation, becomes an increasingly difficult problem.

It is now reported from Washington that the sale of the farm board's surplus wheat will be limited to 5,000,000 bushels monthly. This limitation does not, however, apply to sales to foreign governments or their agencies.

Along with the news that the United States stores an increasing food surplus and harvests hundreds of millions of added bushels of wheat, comes the information from India that food supplies are scant, that a quarter of a million men, women and children are starving and can survive no more than a few weeks unless relief is immediately provided. Hundreds already have died of starvation and many others are driven to suicide.

tually the world population will become too

Students of the Malthusian theory that evengreat to be sustained by the possible food supply may well forget about that remote problem of production and direct their attention to the solution of the immediate and desperately serious problem of making that which is produced available to relieve the necessities of people impoverished, through no fault of their own, in the United States as well as in China and India.—Toledo Blade.

Attention to Kidney Disturbance.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

A common and often neglected disease of the kidneys is that condition known as "hydronephrosis."

Hydronephrosis, as the name implies, is an enlargement of the kidney, due to obstruction and the retention of the fluid. It is brought about by a disturbance in the mechanics of the kidney.

A kidney stone, a twist in the drainage tube, or an obstruction in any portion of the tract leading from the kidney to the bladder, holds back the urine. Because the urine can not pass on into the bladder, it is forced upward into the kidney. When the accumulation is great it produces pressure, of course, and this may cause necrosis, or death of the kidney tissue.

The kidney gradually enlarges. More and more urine collects in the kidney because it has no avenue of escape. In spite of this it is surprising how slight is the pain in this condition. When pain does occur, it is severe while it lasts, but it quickly subsides.

This trouble is often neglected, for years possibly. When it is finally recognized the kidney has been damaged to an extent far beyond hope of recovery.

In advanced cases it is necessary to resort to surgery, perhaps with removal of the diseased kidney. Surgery in these cases is imperative, because if the condition is permitted to drag on, damage will be done to the other kidney.

If the pain is severe, the trouble makes itself known at once. If recognized early and the cause of the obstruction is removed, it is very probable the kidney will be saved.

It is possible to thrive very well with one kidney. It is not absolutely essential to have two. There are records of a few persons who have been born with but one kidney and yet have lived to advanced age. There are many instances where a kidney has been removed in childhood without subsequent ill effects.

I speak of these cases to encourage the victim of hydrophrenosis. But of course early attention is far better than the necessity for radical surgery.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

A.S. Q—I am a young man of nineteen and have been troubled with falling hair for about a year——hair tonics have not been successful. What would you advise?

A—The condition of the scalp and hair depends upon the state of the health in general. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

C.T. Q—What causes my legs to turn white and purple whenever I am the least bit chilly? My arms are also affected at times. It is an indication of poor circulation and how can it be overcome?

A—This is due to poor circulation. Massage and heat should give relief. Improve your general health and your circulation will benefit. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

MISS B.A.W. Q—What can be done for swollen legs? I have tried exercise without results. Would massage be of any avail? I had a kidney condition about three years ago but it has apparently cleared up and is all right now.

A—Find the cause of the trouble first of all. Do not massage or overexert in the meantime. Be sure that your kidneys are not involved and also have the heart examined. Undue exertion will sometimes cause swelling of the legs.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Titan of Physics.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the great scientific figures of the modern is Sir Ernest Rutherford. He has not only done work of vast importance himself; but he has stimulated epochal work on the part of associates and pupils. Soddy, Boler, Geiger, Mosely, will always be remembered for their contributions to science, much of which was done in association with, or under the direction of Sir Ernest Rutherford. The latter's name will always be associated with the modern scientific discovery, for so many centuries the dreams of the alchemists, namely, the transmutation of matter.

Ernest Rutherford was born at Nelson, in New Zealand, on August 30, 1871. The force and vigor of his inquiring mind early displayed themselves in his studies at Canterbury college in New Zealand. At the age of twenty-three he won a scholarship which enabled him to go to England and work under the famous Sir J. J. Thomson, at the Cavendish laboratory in Cambridge.

Rutherford had one of those eager, inquiring minds which took up the newest discoveries and arrived at new results on the basis of the new discoveries. He antic-pated Marconi in sending wireless messages over short distances, up to half a mile. Other subjects which early occupied his attention, eventuating in useful results, were: the motion of electrified atoms, ultra-violet light, and the mysterious rays emitted by uranium salts. Following Berquerel's discovery of the uranium ray, Rutherford made careful studies in this field and showed that this strange, novel ray was not a kind of light as Berquerel erroneously imagined, but a new and important kind of force. These researches won for him the Coutts-Trotter scholarship.

At the age of twenty-seven Rutherford, on the recommendation of Sir J. J. Thomson, was appointed professor of physics at McGill university in Montreal. During the nine years he spent there, he made important contributions to our knowledge of thorium, the rare earth used in making gas-mantles. Frederick Soddy, who went to McGill university about this time, worked in collaboration with Rutherford. They discovered many new properties of radio-activity, and almost created a new science. They set in motion the modern study of the methods by which one element can be changed into another, such as radium into lead.

In 1907 Sir Ernest Rutherford returned to England, occupying the post of professor and director of the physical laboratories at the University of Manchester. Here he created a school of research which became world-famous, rivaling that of the famous Cavendish laboratory at Cambridge. In 1919 Rutherford became director of the latter.

Sir Ernest Rutherford has received innumerable honors, medals and prizes. Notable among these are the Rumford and Barnard medals, and the Nobel prize for chemistry; and honorary degrees from many universities. Sir Ernest Rutherford has a rich, comprehensive outlook; and many ideas credited to other scientists have originated in his fertile and imaginative brain.—Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A South Sea Paradise.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Languorous Samoa is dancing to jazz music and working to a modern high-powered tempo!

Until a few years ago the inhabitants of the Samoan islands, the aristocrats of Polynesia, had never seen an automobile. Today they are air-conscious, motor-minded and patronize movie shows.

Yet tradition dies hard and this paradise-like region still has thousands who cling to the old traditions art and culture.

Samoans are really extraordinarily handsome folk. Their character is as attractive as their appearance, simple, honest, generous and hospitable.

Visitors seldom leave the Samoan islands without expressing fondness for these splendid natives and gratitude for the rich welcome extended to them.

It is a strange sight, indeed, to see motor cars parked under luscious breadfruit trees. But see them you do, along with other evidences that the cha-cha rhythm of our modern life has beaten its pulse into the heart of this Pacific Eden.

Samoa was left alone long after other distant parts of the earth had been invaded by commercialists. This was due to the fact that copra was her only non-perishable product. Motorized transportation has lately put Samoa on the map commercially and today she sends thousands of crates of bananas out into the food markets of the world.

The effect on the natives of their new prosperity and contacts with white traders has been disastrous in some cases.

The fine communal life, the reverence for elders, and all the tribal customs will disappear, it is believed, with the present older generation.

It will be one more victory for progress but what a loss for those lucky few who have witnessed the feasts, the dances and glowing spirits of the Samoans in their celebrating moods.

AIR TRANSPORT SHOWS GROWTH

More Than Two Million and Quarter Mileage Increase in Three Months.

By International News Service

BOSTON, Mass.—Air transport operations through the United States have shown a sound and steady growth, according to figures compiled by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and released by the Aviation Bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Preliminary figures comparing operations in the first quarter of 1931 with the first quarter of 1930 compiler from reports of 32 air transport companies showed an increase of 2,561,013 in scheduled mileage; an increase of 2,383,000 in actual mileage flown or 1.8 per cent; an increase of 276,094 in air mail poundage; a decrease of 8,438 in passengers carried; an increase of 1,413,435 in passenger miles flown, an increase of 47 average miles per passenger.

Although there was a drop in the total number of passengers, established lines showed an increase, the report revealed the fall-off was in new lines which started in 1930 and for the first few months had a heavy "novelty" traffic.

The aviation bureau considered this an unusual showing during the depression. While air transportation is more expensive (about 7 cents a mile per passenger), the saving of time apparently justified its use, the report showed. Another significant fact shown was the increase in length of the average passenger trip.

The improvement in the performance of the air transport was also demonstrated. Weather during the first quarter was the worst in the year (93 per cent of incompleted mileage was due to it) and yet 88.5 per cent of scheduled service was completed in 1931 as against 86.7 per cent in 1930.

Another decided development in aviation service was the announced participation of the New England Railroad in air transportation.

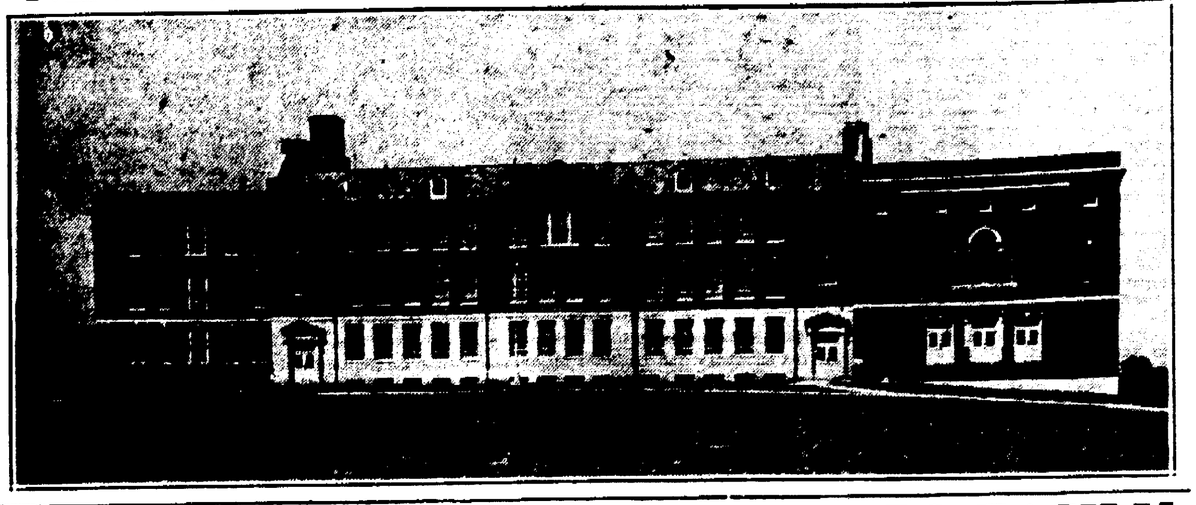
Millard Hunt Co. Furnishes Huge Amount of Buil

NEW OAKLAND JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL



HUNT CO. HANDLES BIG ORDERS EASILY

The latest demonstration of the ability of the Millard Hunt Co. to supply materials for buildings of any size and character is in the recently completed Oakland Heights Junior High school, located at Bellefontaine avenue and Jonesboro road.

Into its construction went carload after carload of brick, stone, cement and other fireproof materials incidental to such a magnificent building.

The 190,000 facebrick were from the Metropolitan Paving Brick Co. which specializes in production of brick which take first rank in utility with the added function of adorning any structure in which they are used.

Reinforced Concrete

Back of the brick and stone facing are the continuous walls of reinforced concrete. Into this rock like shell are car after car of concrete, enfolding a webbing of steel frame work so thoroughly protected that it should last for generations.

Adding further to the beauty and permanence of this educational institution is a trimming of Limestone from the quarries at Bedford, Ind.

The materials mentioned are selected from among the numerous lines represented for over a period of several years by this progressive company. In addition to the Oakland building, the Millard Hunt Co. has been an important factor in practically every public and private enterprise in this vicinity in recent years. Among them might be mentioned the east and west Center street paving, the new concrete highway route 30, and the Indiana grade school recently completed.

Cost Is $285,000

Costing approximately $285,000 exclusive of the furniture, the Oakland Heights building is expected by school officials to go far toward eliminating the crowded conditions prevailing in a number of schools. The furnishings will cost approximately $25,000 additional. Seventeen regular classrooms are provided in the building in addition to two science laboratories, a music room, household arts unit consisting of sewing, fitting, cooking and dining rooms, a library, study hall, mechanical drawing room and a shop for manual training. The auditorium has a seating capacity of 700. The gymnasium is arranged so it can be divided into two sections for physical education classes for boys and girls. The building has a capacity of from 700 to 900 students. Eighth and ninth grade students from the territory now attending Central Junior High school will be transferred to the new school. Seventh grade students attending other schools in the district also will be enrolled at the new building.

Tiffin Firm Builders

Hossler Bros. of Tiffin, O., one of the leading contracting firms in the state are the builders of this wonderful building.

The board of education can well be proud of selecting this firm to do their building as they are real specialists in the construction of school buildings. The people of this community should also take pride in their school board as they are very fortunate in being able to secure the services of Mrs. H. C. King, Mrs. S. M. Midgley, Hector S. Young, Harry J. Barnhart, Frank C. Gegenheimer and George A. Bowman as superintendent.

Well-Equipped Yards

Added to a dominating list and stock of fireproof building materials The Millard Hunt Co. is a leading dealer in coal, coke and fuel oil. The firm has a large yard with every modern facility for rapid and economical handling of coal. Included is equipment for moving it from railroad cars to storage bins or into trucks and from storage to trucks with a minimum of time, labor and expense.

In addition to Millard Hunt, president and general manager, the personnel includes Walter F. Sipe, salesman, Fred S. Morris, bookkeeper and Mrs. Una Burklew, stenographer.

All orders received by this progressive organization are given prompt and careful attention.

Cook Electrically

and save time for other things

The electric range is one of the greatest time savers that electrical service brings to the farm home. It turns itself on and off, automatically, at exactly the time you have set. You needn't spend a minute in watching it—a wonderful saving of time for other things.

Its automatic temperature control does away with all the old uncertainty of baking and roasting. Canning work is greatly simplified and a real pleasure—with an electric range.

Think about it in terms of economy—economy of labor and time and cost. We will tell you all the details.

BATHROOM COSTS ARE FIGURED LOW

Only Room in House Almost Completely Furnished When Family Moves in.

The bathroom is unique among all the rooms in the house in that it is the one room that is almost completely furnished when a family moves into a new home.

None of the rooms are ready for occupancy until rugs or carpets are purchased, pictures hung and furniture placed.

But except for arranging the towels, hanging the shades and curtains, and putting the family medicines into the cabinet, the bathroom is ready when the plumber and decorator finish their work.

Few people think of the bathroom in this way. Yet it is true that one might select plumbing fixtures and accessories of excellent quality for the bathroom and still the cost of furnishing this room would be far below that of the living room, master bedroom or dining room.

This is a point to keep in mind in selecting fixtures for a bathroom in a new house or a bathroom that is being modernized. It pays to select fixtures of good quality, not only because, like furniture, the family is going to live with them for a number of years, but also because the best is, in the long run, the cheapest.

Style, too, is a factor to be kept in mind. Years ago plumbing fixtures were bought for utility alone. Today, however, style, design and color all are important elements in the selection of plumbing fixtures.

Take, for instance the lavatory. There are nearly 30 different kinds of lavatories. The least expensive are those which hang from the wall. The most expensive are those cut from black and gold Italian marble. In between are lavatories that fit every purse and taste.

Newest in design and most up-to-the minute in style is the lavatory with two tapering glass or metal legs. Some of these lavatories with setbacks in the slab and their rectangular bowls suggest the pure beauty of the newer skyscrapers. Lavatories in this style come in various sizes 24x36, 24x30 and 33x24.

Tubs, too vary in style and design. Some are made to fit into a recess, some to fit in a corner and others to be tiled in. One may buy a tub as short as 4½ feet and as long as six feet. Widths vary from 32 inches to 36½ inches. Tubs are made of enameled iron, porcelain or marble.

Every modern bathroom has a shower either over the tub or in a stall. Various kinds of showers and shower heads and controls are available. Stalls, too, are made of different materials. One may use neither a shower curtain or a glass door when the shower is over the tub.

Gotham Gets Second Largest Building

The largest building in New York and the second largest in the world is now under construction. It will be known as the Union Terminal No. 1, and will be surpassed in size only by the Merchandise Mart, Chicago.

Abbott, Merkt and Co., architectural engineers, were the designers, and are supervising the work.

STYLES IN WINDOWS CHANGED GRADUALLY

Maximum Light with Economy in Space Aim of Home Designers.

Among the changes that have taken place in the designing of builders during the past score of years, there is none more noticeable than the difference in window styles.

Following the invention of glazed glass, the chance, which heretofore had been gradual, became radical and many homeowners were forced to either modernize their homes or figuratively hang their heads in shame at the antiquated appearance of their homes.

For many years the windows in small homes were nothing more than holes in the walls. Even in early America they were made by pasting greased paper over the opening, in this manner admitting some of the light and keeping out all the air. Then came small panes and the beautiful architecural creation of diamond panes which are such a burden to window washers.

Finally the group window made its entry, and with this step came probably the greatest improvement in the small home that has yet been made, the "bay" window, which admitted a maximum of light, sunshine and air, but took up too much space, was the forerunner of the group window, we see today. The modern mode of grouped narrow windows brought to the small home a distinctive charm that was a pleasure to the builder.

AUTO REPAIR JOB MUST LOOK LIKE NEW

The Houghton Auto Body service prides itself in being the authorized garage for the Farm Bureau Mutual Insurance Co. Not only does it repair wrecked cars for the local branch but also receives many wreck jobs from branches in nearby counties.

The Houghton Auto Body service was established three years ago as a subsidiary of the Houghton Sulky Co., one of Marion's oldest companies and the largest manufacturer of fine racing sulkies in the world. During the three years the Houghton Auto Body service has been doing business it has repaired over 4,000 wrecked cars. T. S. Hoffman, manager of the Houghton Auto Body service says, "There is no job too large or too small for us to do, and on any wreck we repair, anything short of perfect duplication of the original is unacceptable."

Car Painting

In addition to taking the dents out of the fenders and body of damaged cars the Houghton company can give a complete new paint job. It has all the latest painting devices and recommends and uses the Mimax system of lacquering. Hoffman says, "Our painters are skilled mechanics in their line and can give your car that 'new car appearance' that's required to make a good paint job."

Handles Safety Glass

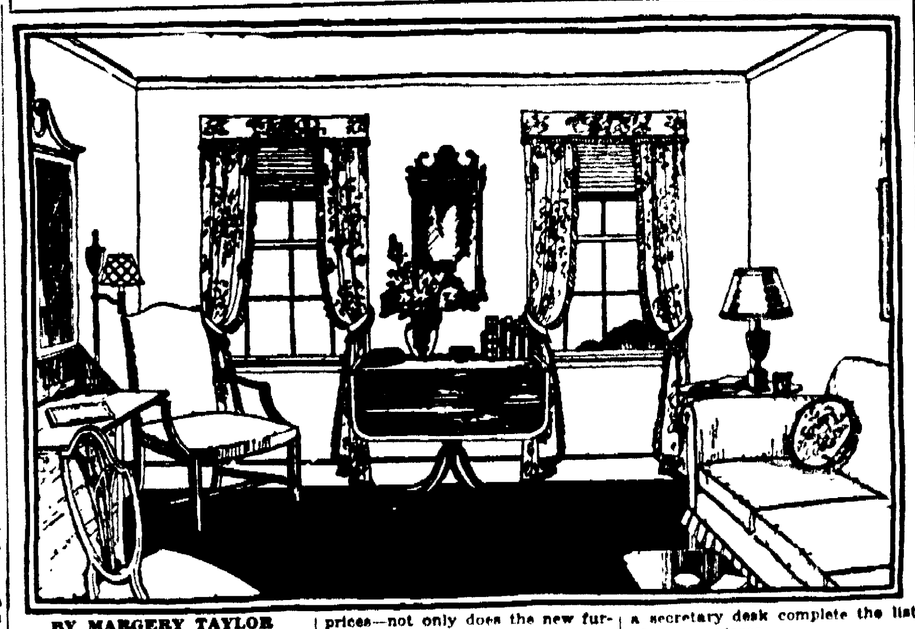
This safety class, which which all cars should be equipped, is guaranteed not to blister or discolor and will not shatter. The Houghton Auto Body service has the equipment needed to cut and grind glass to fit either windshield, doors or windows in your car. Safety glass offers so much more safety in case of an accident than ordinary glass that most of the newer cars on the market today are coming already equipped with this Libby-Owens product.

Mechanics Skilled

The Houghton Body service employs only workmen skilled in their respective lines. Their metal worker is an expert with 25 years experience as a body builder. It also has a modern blacksmith shop, as well as a modern wood shop with all the latest machinery. In these departments the same skilled mechanics are employed, who for so many years have made Houghton sulkies famous the world over. To take care of the upholstering on your car at Houghton's you will find the most skilled in this line to be found in this part of the country.

Hoffman says, "There is no place we won't go for a wrecked car at any time and when we repair a damaged car, whether the job is large or small, the work must be satisfactory."

Homes That 'Grow' Govern Furniture Buyer



BY MARGERY TAYLOR

The new bride, planning a new home, is faced by more problems than usual this year—but they are pleasant problems.

For most brides the first home is usually an apartment and usually temporary. But that is no reason why it should not be planned with an eye to the future.

And—with the prevailing low prices—not only does the new furniture appeal to the pocketbook, but also charms the eye of good taste.

The new period reproductions are authentic and graceful as well as useful. Even a two-room apartment can become the nucleus of a home by using furniture of different periods.

In such an apartment, for instance, the housewife may start off with a Federal American mahogany living room and an Early American maple bedroom—an excellent combination.

In the living room there must be, of course, a large, comfortable wing chair to keep the men home. This chair may be even more important than the Lawson sofa or the Martha Washington wing chair.

A large table, two end tables and a secretary desk complete the list of larger pieces.

A set of eight chairs might be needed for a real living room later, and it would be economical to buy them all at once. So, in a small apartment, some may well go in the hall and dinette. Chippendale, Duncan Phyfe and Windsor are favorite styles.

Chintz wallpaper, ruffled curtains and hooked rugs suit the bedroom in maple. The bed should be of the four-poster or spool stype. Appropriate to the scene is a candlewick bedspread with a patchwork quilt.

If the bride has a low-boy for a dressing table, one Salem chest of drawers will be enough to begin with. Two chairs and a little chintz arm chair are usually enough to complete the picture.

GERMAN LEADERS AT PARIS MEETING

Momentous Loan Proposal Taken Up by Bruening and Curtius.

sin, are expected to join in a four-power parley later in the day after the Franco-German conversations are concluded. A decision as to whether a London conference will be necessary may be made at that time.

While the French proposals have never been announced, they are believed to entail the backing of the loan by German customs receipts and an international controlling committee to supervise German expenditures, somewhat in the manner of the defunct Dawes plan. The plan is said to have the approval of the American and British delegates.

Repayment Plan

The $500,000,000 would be advanced to the Reichsbank in the same manner as the $100,000,000 loan and extended recently by the bank for international settlements. Both loans would be repaid as soon as possible by the proceeds of a 10-year credit guaranteed by the United States, France, England, Italy and Belgium.

The nature of the conditions was regarded by the press as more financial than political but as essential to French security and not unreasonable for German pride.

GERMANY HOPEFUL

But Fears Political Condition May Make Loan Unacceptable.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, July 18 — The hopes and fears of the fatherland went with her statesmen to Paris today to convince France that unless financial aid is forthcoming Germany's crisis may become Europe's catastrophe.

Millions of Germans were hoping that Chancellor Bruening and his foreign minister, Dr. Julius Curtius, would be able to secure French collaboration in a long term loan or credits—and fearing that the political conditions attached to much assistance would be unacceptable to the Reich.

The chancellor himself, when he left on the Nord express, was optimistic that his parley with Premier Laval would inaugurate a new era in Franco-German relations.

Diminutive Laura Ingalls Determined To Defeat Jinx of Women Ocean Fliers

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 18—Aviators at this jumping off place for Atlantic flights look on diminutive Laura Ingalls as a feminine David who has selected as her Goliath the jinx which has presided over practically every ocean flight in which women have taken part.

Of the 10 women who have actually started on such adventures

five have perished; one was injured in a crash, another was rescued only after being flung into the sea, two turned back, and only one reached the other side, although not in the country she had intended. Others planned ocean flights but for one reason or another never reached the point of take-off

Mind Is Made Up

Yet Laura Ingalls, one of the smallest and apparently the frailest of them all, has set her eyes across the sea and has determined to do alone what so many of her sister fliers could not do with the help of men

The first woman to try an ocean flight was Miss Mildred Doran, who set out with two men on Aug 16, 1927, on an air race from the west coast to Hawaii. She and her companions were lost at sea as were two other men in another entry in the race and still two more in a plane which tried to rescue them.

Two weeks later the first Atlantic flight participated in by a woman began. With two men the Princess Ludwig Lowenstein-Wertheim (Lady Anne Saville) took off in England for Canada. They were never heard from.

Actress Reaches Azores

In October of that year Lilli Dillenz, Austrian actress, started out in a Junkers plane from Germany and got to the Azores but there after many delays the flight was abandoned and she returned by boat.

While she was waiting at the Azores, Ruth Elder hopped off in America with George W. Haldeman to fly the southern route to France They made a forced landing off the Azores and were rescued by a steamer.

The only other woman to try an ocean flight in 1927 was Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, who took off for Harbor Grace two days before Christmas with three men All were lost.

In March of the next year the Hon. Elsie Mackay took off in England with Captain Walter Hinchliffe Neither was ever seen again.

Miss Earhart Reaches Wales

In June 1928 Amelia Earhart and Mabel Boll, known as the queen of diamonds because of her many jewels, both planned Atlantic flights, but Miss Earhart got away first and Miss Boll abandoned her flight. Miss Earhart is the only woman who has ever flown across the ocean in an airplane. She hoped to reach Paris but landed in Wales.

All the flights in which women participated were actually made by men, the women merely going along as passengers.

For one reason and another women dropped out of ocean flying from the summer of 1928 until the first part of the present year. Then it began again and the beginning was another tragedy. Mrs. Beryl Hart, a red-haired widow from New Jersey, took off on the southern course with William MacLaren. They were seen no more.

It was after this that the idea of a woman's solo flight began to gain ground and two aspirants presented themselves, Ruth Nichols and Laura Ingalls. Miss Nichols got away first, taking off from New York on June 22. She crashed at St. John, N. B., cracking two vertebrae in her spine

Then out of the west came Laura Ingalls less than 100 pounds of her, prepared to pit her resources against the jinx that has thrown its grim shadow over ocean flights by women.

SHE GOT HER MAN!

When Howard L. Shaw telephoned the church in Baltimore where his bride-to-be, Myrtle L. Flynn, was waiting, to tell her that business had detained him, the bride dashed from her guests and rushed to the railroad station from which the couple was due to leave on their honeymoon. There they were married in the waiting room—all within 30 minutes. This photo was just sandwiched in in the few remaining moments before their train left for the West Coast. They're honeymooning in Honolulu.

HOW HAPPY WE ARE

Surely Mr. and Mrs. Irving Thalberg look as if nothing interfered with their happiness as they smile for the photographer and their homeland as they return to the old U. S. A. at New York from Europe. The smiling beauty perched on the ship's rail is better known as Norma Shearer, star of the films. Her husband is a prominent picture executive.

IT IS DESIRABLE to help Europe, if we can; for, if Europe sinks, it would be bad for us.

It would be desirable to help various things in the United States also, if that were possible.

For instance, the "Independent Petroleum Association of America" with headquarters in Tulsa Okla., says, "Because of shrinkage in the value of crude oil in the mid-continent area the daily loss in new capital in this area is $1,696,000"

Multiply that considerable sum by 365, and you have $619,040,000, an item worth thinking about.

It is largely due to a drop in the value of crude oil, from $1.29 a barrel in 1930 to 33 cents and lower in 1931.

Oil in the United States reminds you of little Alice's Cheshire cat It gradually disappeared until nothing but the smile was left. In the case of the oil industry, it isn't a cheerful smile

CHAPTER 4
Locked Gates

THE bright, hard surface that Molly seemed to have shed congealed again at Juanita's plea.

"I couldn't' do that. I take orders from Divitt same as everybody here. And what did I tell you about gettin' away? You couldn't find a better place to hide in. And nobody'll hurt you here. They wouldn't dare. You'll like my husband when you know him. Course his business is shady, but most business is. Come down and see the parlors. It'll get your mind off yourself."

The girl lay looking at Conchita who had come back and was putting the room to rights.

Conchita picked up the stockings, and Juanita thrust out a slim leg, another. Presently in the peacock kimono and the gold slippers she followed Molly down the stair, her eyes taking in the barred court. There was no escape by way of the great iron gates at the front. They were locked and had an inner door of wood, open now. In the inner door was what looked like a little window or slide

Molly entered a large room off the court, switched on the lights. There were prism-hun chandeliers, Chinese rugs, marble-topped tables, huge brass cuspidors. In a corner was a roulette wheel, and at the opposite end of the room a gilt cage, with a cashier's desk and window.

"You see," said Molly, "this is no dive. No gang playing here now. Swells. Ladies in lovely clothes. Divitt says you can pass cigarets. You'd like to earn your keep, I know. It's a nice job."

The girl's eyes moved from one sealed window to the next. "I do not call that hiding," she said after a pause.

"Wait." Molly smiled like one who veils a secret for a while. "Leave it to me."

Juanita followed her across the court. Yonder was a little wooden gate in the rear wall. Through its cracks one could see flashes of a garden that must be beneath her room, though she had no window to look down upon it. A gate with a simple catch...

They were at her door again.

"Lie down now," Molly was saying. "What did you tell Divitt your name was?"

"Juanita Basara."

"I'll call you 'Juanita.' And you call me 'Molly.' It means a lot to me to have you here—a woman of my own kind. Divitt wants you for me, as much as anything else. Lie down now and rest so you'll be fresh tonight.

"I got an mind how you're going to dress. There's a woman 'round the corner makes costumes for Mardi Gras. Here, give me that pink dress to measure by. I'm going over to Canal street and get you some other clothes, too. And let me get the number out of those little gold slippers."

When Molly had gone Juanita looked down into the court. It was never empty. Conchita outside the kitchen, Divitt entering or leaving by the iron gates, Gabreau carrying water. But tonight when Mrs. Divitt had brought the clothes and all was dark, surely she could reckon with the little gate. The world? Had it any worse place? She could find the docks. She had her bracelet. It would take her somewhere.

Gabreau came that evening with the box. Strange that he repelled her less than any denizen of this house. He seemed her friend. That warning he had flashed to her the night before. And now his eyes seemed begging to do her some service.

He seemed about to speak. A door opened down the balcony and Umberto emerged. Gareau drew back.

Juanita, closing her door, heard the two men going down the stair. Then she lit her lamp, tore the strings from the box. There was no dress inside; only a lot of black stuff— pyjamas, it looked like. Juanita flung it upon the floor. She began to sob, striving to quiet herself, pacing the room. "Pedro!" she sobbed. "Ay, Pedro!"

Some one laughed in the court. The iron gates creaked open, creaked shut. There was stillness. Juanita looked out. The court was empty. But she had not even the pink dress now. No matter. She snatched up her cloak, wrapped it about her, opened her door softly and stepped out. There was no light except in the parlors.

Lightly she flew to the little gate. The crack was wide. Juanita, putting her hand through the crack, found the gate locked.

At a sound she turned. Umberto stood lighting the lamp beside the fountain. Had he seen her? She waited till he had gone into the kitchen. Then she slipped into her room. Again that caged pacing of her floor. She knew what she would do!

Conchito came with her supper—a supper with which she had taken pains.

"You mus' eat! You will dial" grunted Conchita, picking up the black garments from the floor. Was she the dwarf's mother, wondered the girl.

"Gabreau," she began cautiously. "The one they call Gabreau—"

Conchita smiled. "You like him?"

So he was her son. "He had been very kind," Juanita answered, "bringing me things."

Conchita dismissed these services with a brief nod.

"He ron errand for de house. You will see him tonight in the parlor. You like my Gabreau, yes? He is not tall like Umberto, but he is strong. He brek lock one time with his hands. You will see my Gabreau look fine tonight."

The girl spoke casually. "I want to see him. I have something for him."

"Si, Senorita. I'll tell him."

"I must see him alone"

Juanita felt danger in her words, but Conchita nodded. "To be course, Senorita. Umberto will tek it away—what you have for my Gabreau—if he see. Umberto is bad—mal, malo, malvado, Perverso Diablo."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Saturday. I was thinking about Jimmie Bolin, when I woke up, and I was glad I hadn't dreamt about him last night and woke up in the dark. Because it made me feel offal bad to think about him when it was daylight

I pushed Jubilee out of bed and let him down by his rope, and then I got my short britches on and went down to get the pail and do my work, and all the bunch was taking about Jimmie, and when I went in the house my mother hugged me and kissed me again, and even my ant patted me on the bean and said she guest it took something offal to make folks know how lucky they were. She meant that Jimmie getting drownded made her know how lucky she was to not get drownded. But if she ever got drownded it would have to be in the bathtub for she never goes swimming, and she would have to stand on her head to get drownded in a bathtub, and I bet she couldn't stand on her head if she tried to. That is one way that a fella is luckier than a girl. Girls clothes are not made for standing on heads.

My mother said she hoped I wouldn't ever go swimming again, and when I said I went swimming yesterday where Jimmie got drownded she kinda gaspeded and turned pale. My father said to let me alone. He said I wouldn't get drownded till my time came and when that came nothing could help me. She said she would worry every minute I was out of her sight, and my ant said she would be worrying about all the time. Anyhow I got a piece of lemon pie for breakfast that I bet I wouldn't of got if Jimmie hadn't drownded. I am sorry he got drownded, but I sure do like lemon pie.

On the way to the pasture we stopped to look in a yard at some roses, and a lady asked us if we would like one of her roses, and when we said we would like all of them, because a little boy got drownded and we were going to his funeral she said we could have all of them, so on the way back from the pasture we went in and were picking them, but the lady wasn't home and a man was there that thought we were swiping them and he shouted at us about a mile. We went to the house where the funeral was and stood around, and ate and saw everything. The flowers were all here from our school in one of the big ... and they certainly did ... look like the world ... the body ... in one of ...

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Katie's Alarm Brings Madge Hurrying.

I was at the door of my room and had jerked it open before Katie's voice frantically calling Lillian and me had fairly died away. Lillian was close behind me and we both were asking in alstently "What is it?" but we found we were addressing the query to Katie a retreating back as she scurried toward the nursery.

"Ba-bee!"

She flung the word over her shoulder at us as she went through the door, and Lillian caught my shoulder as I swayed toward her.

"Steady, Girl, you know how excitable Katie is

"I am all right," I panted as we dashed after Katie, for I have a horror of the type of woman who "goes to pieces" when there is an emergency. I can remember my little mother saying "Time enough for tears and swoons when the danger is over, and there's nothing more to be done," and schooled in those precepts, I always have been able to keep going in times of stress

But it took every atom of my will power to keep from screaming as I went through Katherine a sitting room to the nursery beyond, and saw her bending over a right little body on the bed

My baby daughter, Faith? Was she ...

Katherine spoke without turning her head

"She's coming out of it, now Madge, help me here, and Lillian, send for Dr Quigley He a nearer than the others Tell him to come at once

She moved a bit to one side as I bent over the bed, restraining by a mighty effort the impulse to snatch up my baby and hold her tightly in my arms As I looked down at her, the last vestige of rigidity left her and she opened her eyes

"She's all right now for the time, Katherine said reassuringly. "But stand here, and don't take your eyes from her I'm only going into the next room, so if her eyelids and fingers begin to quiver spasmodically, call me instantly Katie empty that bath tub and get is heady to fill again And bring in another covered pan of hot water I hope we won't need it, but I want to be ready if we do"

"Convulsion?" I uttered the word so dreaded by every mother with lips so dry that I could hardly frame the syllables

"Yes, but not a hard one," Katherine answered as she hurried away, and I did not know myself in the fury against my little kinswoman which swept and ravaged me as I anxiously watched the face and hands of my tiny daughter for the dread symptoms Katherine had named.

It was a fury against myself as well, but for the moment I could neither analyze nor voice it. All my faculties fixed upon the tiny face upon the bed.

Katie, trying to keep under control the sobs into which she breaks at every hint of danger to the children, worked swiftly to obey Katherine's directions, and then clutched at my arm

"Is Baby Going To Die?"

"Oh, Misses Graham!" she whispered though she could have been heard in the next room "Is dot darling ba-bee going die on us?"

"Katie!" Lillian's voice sounded crisply from the doorway. "If you say any other word except 'yes' and 'no' until this thing is over, I'll lock you up myself in a dark closet for the rest of the night And I'll tell you now that the baby is not going to die"

Did she believe that statement herself? I asked myself drearily, as Katie gave a little gasp of relief.

"Go out into the hall, Katie," Lillian went on in kindly but firm fashion, "and sit down close to the door where Mrs. Rickett can get you at a second's notice. I'll take your place here."

Katie knew better than to disobey, but her very back was sulky as she went slowly out of the door and closed it after her.

"Cassandra was an optimist compared to our Katie," Lillian commented in a low voice, but for once her cheerfulness jarred, even though I knew that she was carefully preserving a casual air in order to relieve the terror which she knew was engulfing me

"Is the-doctor-coming?" I whispered.

"At once He sounded as if he were reaching for his shoes with one hand as he held the receiver to his ear with the other He ought to be here any minute"

I had not taken my eyes from the face of my baby daughter, and I fancied I saw her eyelids quiver. I grasped Lillian's arm.

"Look!" I whispered "Are her eyelids moving?" Katherine said to call her if they were"

"She's opening them, that's all," Lillian said practically as Faith opened her eyes wide, and screwed her face into the familiar lines preceding a wail. Never have I heard anything so welcome as that perfectly natural cry, and never have I felt more unreasoning savage resentment that I experienced at the sight of Katherine hurrying into the room at the sound of that tiny wail But as yet I could not clearly analyze the cause of my unjust reaction to her

TWENTY GRAND BIG FAVORITE TO TAKE ARLINGTON CLASSIC

Victory Today Will Give Three-Year-Old Title to Whitney Horse.

CHICAGO, July 18—Unless all the dope was wrong, all Twenty Grand had to do today was gallop a mile and a quarter today to become the undisputed three-year-old champion thoroughbred of the season and win $73,650 more for Mrs Payne Whitney in the third renewal of the Arlington classic

While not as certain as death and taxes, Twenty Grand was as much of a cinch as a horse could be. His trainer, Jimmy Rowe, Jr., said the big horse was never more fit and that the prize money for the world's richest three-year-old event would be stacked up on the same pile with the purses for the Woods memorial stake the Kentucky derby, the Belmont stakes and the Dwyer stakes

Twenty Grand was a prohibitive overnight favorite and was bound to remain the choice regardless of weather conditions With his stablemate, St Brideaux, the big horse was quoted at 3 to 5, with A. C. Bostwick's mate, the only horse to conquer Twenty Grand this year the second choice at 4 to 1. Spanish Play, the west's hope for a surprise victory, was quoted at 8 to 1, and Joey Bibb was 15 to 1. The remaining two in the field, Sun Meadow and Sir Ashley, were down at 20 and 25 to 1, respectively

Twenty Grand and Mate were called up to shoulder top weight of 126 pounds, Spanish Play was down for 123, with St Brideaux, Sun Meadow and Sir Ashley carrying 121. Joey Bibb got in at 119 Charles Kurtsinger, who has ridden Twenty Grand in all his triumphs this season, had the mount on the big favorite, and J. McAtee was St Brideaux's pilot Mate was under A Robertson and L. Schaefer was to ride Meadow. Sir Ashley's pilot was T. Malley, and C. Landolt was on Spanish Play. E. Steffen had to mount on Joey Bibb.

With fair weather a crowd of 60,000 to 75,000 was expected, with most of them going for the sole purpose of watching the colt which has been compared to the immortal Man O'War.

The fewer acquaintances a man has the less he is bored.

The Erie Traffic Club kept its position in the first division by taking the Company B soldiers into camp, 11 to 0.

Juniors Come Close

In the first round games of the season the Prospect Firemen narrowly missed being handed a surprise defeat by the Wesley Juniors and yesterday it again required nearly the full game to decide the winner The Juniors held the league leaders scoreless until the fifth frame when the Firemen engineered two runs off the deliveries of Gorenflo, Junior hurler. The Firemen added three more in the sixth and seventh to cinch the game

The K of P team started out like they intended to hand the Serv-U-Wel Grocers a first class beating, scoring three runs in the first half of the first. The Grocers however shut them off in later innings and went on something of a scoring spree of their own. Four runs in the second spelled the downfall of the fraternal nine. The game was stopped at the end of the fifth inning on account of rain.

Kappas Win 4-3

The General Excavator threw another scare into the Kappas yesterday but failed to muster sufficient punch to come through with a victory. The second placers won the game 4 3 but only after the hardest kind of a battle. The Excavator team took the lead in the second inning by scoring a pair of runs and held it until the fourth when the Kappas came through with four scores, part of them coming from errors on the part of the Excavator players. The losers threatened to tie it up in the sixth but Rank checked the rally before it had gone too far.

The Erie Traffic club had little difficulty in hammering the offerings of Edler, Company B hurler, for 11 runs while Shoemaker set the Soldiers down with little trouble

GROVE PUTS 19TH IN BAG AS A'S TROUNCE DETROIT TIGERS 6-3

Ferrell Checks Yank Sluggers and Redskins Win 2-1; Cards Are Beaten 4-1.

BY GAYLE TALBOT, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

No one has accused either the Boston Braves or the Cincinnati Reds of having designs on this year's National league pennant, but those two clubs have just completed what likely will stand as the most remarkable series played in either major league this season.

For pitching brilliance over a period of days, there has been nothing so far to compare with the performance given by their respective mound staffs the last four days. The total runs scored by both teams in the four contests was only 13, eight for the Reds and five for the Braves. Shutouts were registered on three of the four afternoons, John Ogden and Red Lucas turning the feat for the Reds and Bruce Cunningham for the Braves

Series Divided

Cincinnati's two victories were won by scores of 1 to 0, and 5 to 0 Boston captured its pair, 3 to 2, and 2 to 0. Lefty Brandt of the Braves allowed only four hits in losing the second game of the series to old John Ogden

In climaxing the torrid series yesterday, Lucas limited the Braves to five hits, two of them by Rabbit Maranville, while he and his mates jumped on Frankhouse and Moss for 10 to run up the highest score of the series Lucas, himself, contributed a double and a single to the attack.

While on the subject of pitching Jumbo Jim Elliott of the Phillies comes in for a share of the plaudits His team could win only two out of five engagements from the Pittsburgh Pirates, and he pitched both of them After beating the Pirates, 1 to 0, on Monday, he came back to do it again yesterday, 4 to 1, for his thirteenth victory of the year He yielded only four hits and did not walk a batter.

Cards Lose 4-1

A pair of Brooklyn ancients, Adolfo Luque and John Quinn, held the St. Louis Cardinals to nine scattered blows as the Robins squared the four-game series, 4 to 1

Batting, rather than pitching, featured the fourth game in the senior circuit, the Giants clouting three Chicago curvers for 15 hits to close the series with a 7 to 6 victory and squeeze back into second place in the standing Ethan Allen, a pinch hitter, drove across the winning runs with a double after two were out in the seventh

Lefty Grove chalked up his nineteenth victory of the year and his tenth in a row as the champion Athletics made it four out of five from Detroit, 6 to 3.

Wes Ferrell of the Indians, scored almost a single-handed victory over the Yankees, 2 to 1. He granted only three hits, one of which was Babe Ruth's twenty-third home run of the year, and won his own game with a blow into the left bleachers in the seventh.

Every member of the Washington club connected at least once as the Senators bade the Chicago White Sox a 12 to 7 farewell.

"Bill" may be old but he's not through playing tennis. This is amply demonstrated by the manner in which he has lately been beating all of the leading professionals of the net game. Old Father Time seems to be having the chase of his life trying to catch "Big Bill." Maybe he'll do it some of these days. He doesn't fail very often. At least no one hears of the failures if he does.

Gasco Presents Check to Softball Injury Fund

A belated contribution to the softball injury fund has brought the total amount for that purpose to $97 10. This money is to be used by the city softball commission for the payment of costs in two injury cases, Don. Cox and Stewart Jones were the victims of these accidents recently, Cox having suffered a broken leg and Jones a broken shoulder

The Gasco club was the latest contributor. C. F. Bronson, manager of the club, presented a check yesterday for $7 50, which with other smaller contributions brings the amount to the total figure given above.

"IRON MEN" OF A'S QUITE WILLING TO PITCH OFTEN

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 14—When big George Earnshaw trudges out to the mound to fire baseballs past the hitters, sometimes as often as every other day, the faithful must wonder why Connie Mack doesn't quit picking on that burly, willing fellow.

But strangely enough, most of the times that Earnshaw and Bob Grove, the long left hander, march out to the rescue of some other struggling Philadelphia pitcher, Connie Mack has nothing to do with it. He sort of looks down the bench appealingly when there's a relief job to be done. Sometimes it is Grove, but oftener it is Earnshaw who speaks up.

Where's That Ball-?

"Where's that ball? Give me the ball. I'll go out there."

Earnshaw is a six-foot three-inch, 200-pound, husky of ancient Quaker stock, listed in the social register, a Swarthmore college graduate, well-to-do in his own right. He loves to pitch the way Babe Ruth likes to hit and if he had his way he'd be starting games for the Athletics every other day.

"I'm better the oftener I work," says big George "Every other day is just about right for me If I rest too much I lose my control and I find that I'm no stronger after three days rest than I am after two"

With 15 victories to his credit and only four defeats marked against him, Earnshaw turned in the "iron man" highlight of the first half of the major league season last week when he pitched a full game Monday, and lost through errors to the Senators, pitched nine more and trounced Washington Tuesday; and then came back Friday in a relief role to halt the Yankees for eight innings and finally win in the fourteenth

He gets between $18 000 and $20 000 a year.

GEORGE EARNSHAW

Once after Earnshaw got four hits, Al Simmons, the slugger, approached big George with doffed cap

"What is your weakness, Mr Earnshaw?"

"Honest," the pitcher replied. "I don't know If I had to pitch to myself right now I'd be puzzled."

Earnshaw played football at Swarthmore, besides pitching, but the system he uses with Connie Mack failed miserably on the gridiron The ace fullback of a big rival was tearing the Swarthmore line to pieces while big George writhed on the bench

"Let me go in, coach," he pleaded "I'll stop that guy."

The coach sent him in Ane one play later they carried him out, feet first, and he has stuck to baseball ever since.

Fame is Fleeting, Bobby Finds as He is Snubbed by Galleryites

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO—If you don't think fame is fleeting, just ask Bobby Jones.

The champion of golf champions joined in with the galleries at the Ryder cup matches and the National open during the golfing tornado in Ohio, but was scarcely noticed by the changing fans.

In fact, Bobby was shoved just as hard in the wild scramble as old Joe Duffer himself.

Once during the National open tussle at Toledo, Bobby was watching the play when he was caught in the rush and almost got trapped body and all

Withal, he turned out to be a good galleryite although he wasn't much on walking hole after hole to see the matches. Usually he walked a hole or two and then found a comfortable, cool spot under a shady tree, where he clicked off shots with his small movie camera.

"You know I used to think, when I was playing in these championships, that the marshals let the galleryites come too close to the players," commented Bobby. "But now I begin to think they don't let them come close enough Sometimes I was just barely able to see some shots"

At one time at Toledo, a newspaperman spied Bobby with the gallery. He turned to a duffer and said:

"Do you know who that fellow is next to you?"

"Who?" asked the duffer

"Why that's Bobby Jones!"

The duffer looked wonderingly, then turned and shouted

"Wow, look at that shot!"

With that he joined the mad scramble down the fairway without another glance toward the retired emperor of golf.

TRADING DULL ON BIG BOARD

Small Recessions Noted in Smallest Day's Sales in Five Years.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 18—The stock market went to sleep on its feet today.

Foreign markets closed. Wall Street undetermined whether to be hopeful or gloomy over prospects of relief for Germany from the international conference of cabinet ministers, which decided to let the market decide the time as best it can.

During the two-hour session around 400,000 shares, one day's business in five years, trickle of week-end selling came early in the session. Several recessions of 1 to 2 points in the list firmed in the last hour, and closed with gains predominating.

United and American Can, showing temporary losses of a point, recovered to close unchanged. A little bullish news developed in the cigaret group with Lorillard making a gain of nearly 2 points.

Steel products rallied about 2 points, possibly reflecting news that Ford will license its process to other corn products companies. Wall Street believes that the savings are substantial and that the entire industry will benefit.

Standard Oil on the other hand suffered a sinking spell, again reflecting price cutting in chemicals, the failure of the International Nitrate Cartel to renew its agreement. An extreme decline of nearly 2 points was largely recovered however.

Standard Oil of New York was cheered by the report in circles close to the company that the current dividend rate will be maintained on Socony-Vacuum stock at the directors' meeting. The stock closed nearly a point higher.

Potatoes at 25 cents a peck was one of the most spectacular of specials offered by dealers today. While other specials were featured in the week-end buying, none showed a great departure from the prices quoted the greater part of the week. Green beans at three pounds for 25 cents, hothouse tomatoes at 15 and 20 cents and field grown tomatoes at two and three pounds for 25 cents, were among the specials being offered today.

Peas were selling today at three pounds for 25 cents and the supply appeared to be ample and the quality good. Cauliflower was holding at from 25 to 40 cents a head with a limited supply. Home grown cucumbers are on the market and were being offered at five cents.

Both black and red raspberries and blackberries were slightly more plentiful today with prices showing no change from earlier in the week. The supply is limited and dealers were asking from 25 to 35 cents for red raspberries, 20 to 25 cents for the black varieties and 19 cents for blackberries.

Dealers report heavy sales in both watermelons and cantaloupe due to the continued hot weather.

WHEAT PRICE SAGS LOWER

Follows Action of Securities; Corn Advances as Rains Are Light.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 18 — Paralleling the action of securities, wheat tended downward early today. Corn advanced owing to general absence of adequate rains. Starting at 1-8@1-2 cents decline, wheat later underwent an additional sag. Corn opened 1-8@5-8 up and afterward rose further.

Enlarged arrivals of wheat at Chicago had a bearish influence. Receipts here totaled 702 cars, compared with 370 a year ago and 440 on the corresponding day last year. A decrease at Kansas City was virtually ignored, the arrivals there although smaller than a week ago being practically equal to last year's figures. Comparative weakness of Liverpool wheat quotations was emphasized by bears, who also contended that financial parleys abroad were showing little, if any progress.

Corn bulls made much of assertions that no moisture of consequence had been supplied overnight to the corn belt, and that high temperatures without rain were likely to cause severe crop damage. The average rainfall in nine corn belt states during the last week was shown to be 1.28 inches, compared with a normal of 3.52. Selling on the price upturns led to reactions at times, but rallies ensued. Oats were responsive to corn strength.

THEY SHOULD WORRY

The world may be nearly torn asunder by war debt negotiations and apprehensive of the future of Germany and her wartime enemies, but that's no reason why these jack tars of Great Britain and the Fatherland should worry. Just how much they are fretting over the international situation is shown in this picture as the German seaman on the left and English naval petty officers on the right stroll arm-in-arm with a blonde and buxom lassie of Kiel upon the first visit of the British fleet to Kiel since the World war. Everybody's happy—and why not?

Despite the fact that many of the members are out of work, the report of the auditing committee of the brotherhood submitted at the meeting showed the order to be in good financial condition. The auditing committee is composed of R. O. Hopkins, chairman, Robert H. Stief and Bert Brashares. LEAVENS AT CLERKS' MEET

Township Officials of State Discuss New Laws at Session in Columbus.

Discussion of new state laws affecting township trustees featured a meeting of the State Association of Township Clerks and Trustees in Columbus yesterday. Marion county township trustees were represented by County Surveyor Cecil R. Leavens.

Belief that a lions share of the additional revenue the counties are expected to receive from the increased automobile license plate fees will be absorbed by the general operating fund of the counties and townships instead of going into the road funds was expressed by William B. Guitteau, editor of the Better Highways magazine and a collector of internal revenue at Toledo.

Must Make Up Loss

The license plate receipts were expected to build up the road funds, but Guitteau pointed out that the general operating funds of the counties and townships must first be reimbursed for the lack of personal property tax on automobiles and household goods, which were discontinued by the legislature. When this is done, there will be little left for road purposes, he said.

Marion county is xpected to receive an additional $93,000 from license plate sales next year but what portion of this will be used to reimburse the general operating funds of the county and townships can not be estimated by county officials.

The association passed a resolution favoring better health conditions in the counties and townships and called on township trustees throughout the state, who are legally given a voice in the administration of county health departments, to insist on greater health attention in rural districts.

To Ask New Laws

Representation of a committee to recodify existing cemetary laws of the state will be sought from Governor White by the association. Township trustees often become liable for the maintenance of cemeteries laid out and promoted by real estate dealers instead of bona fide boards of trustees, it was pointed out in yesterday's meeting.

Surveyor Leavens will discuss all matters taken up by the association at a meeting of the Marion county township trustees here within the next month.

Jan. 28 and 29, 1932, were chosen as dates for the annual meeting of the state association yesterday. The annual meeting will be held in the Neil House.

Truck Driver Pleads Not Guilty to Charge

L. Gossett, driver of a Lima Packing Co. truck who was arrested here Thursday night on a reckless driving charge, pleaded not guilty when arraigned before Municipal Judge W. R. Martin this morning and his trial was set for Tuesday at 3 p. m. He was released under $25 bond for his appearance at that time. The police said he was driving on Davids street at a high rate of speed when arrested.

WELL REMEMBERED

Master Sergeant Peter E. Boyle (above), World war veteran, retiring next June after 30 years of service with the U. S. army, was pleasantly surprised the other day when he received a $6,000 bequest from Colonel Charles H. Paine, who died in California last year. Paine was Boyle's commanding officer in 1912 and for many years thereafter. Boyle, stationed at Governors Island, N. Y., says he has no idea why he was remembered in his superior's will.

A six months sentence in the workhouse at Columbus, suspended on condition that he pay $6 a week toward the support of his three weeks old baby, was given William Jolliff of Richwood by Municipal Judge W. R. Martin this morning when he pleaded guilty to a non-support charge. Jolliff was arrested yesterday on an affidavit filed in municipal court here by his wife, Fyrn Jolliff, who said her husband had not contributed toward the support of the child.

AUTHOR LAUDS BUSINESS WOMAN

Rex Beach Tells of Her Courage in Market Crash

By International News Service

NEW YORK—Woman is inclined to be more sportsmanlike and philosophical about her financial losses than is man.

When the great crash came the average woman hastily applied make-up to cover any ravages that her complexion might have shown, and quietly walked out of the brokerage office. While the average man was haggard and ran round in circles like a trapped animal.

That is the opinion, anyway, of one man who is a trained observer and recorder of human reactions. He is Rex Beach, the famous novelist, who has recorded his impressions of the seven financial fat years and their attendant aftermath in a book that he has cleverly captioned, "Mad Money." Like nearly everyone else, Rex Beach was taken for a financial ride, but, unlike most of us, he has capitalized his experience in a characteristic way, in his book. But to get back to woman and high finance.

Future Portrayed

Women are going to play a greater part than ever before in the financial world, insists Mr. Beach. He believes that as she gains financial background, knowledge and experience, the smart, good looking, charming woman is going to have a great future as a "customers' woman." During the past few years she gained great headway in a field hitherto sacred to man and she did splendidly at the job. Of course, she didn't have many customers of her own sex, but many men have declared that the judgment of their customers' woman was quite as sound as that of a man in a similar capacity. And, after all, when the crash did come nothing mattered very much anyhow.

Rex Beach was really amazed at the attitude of many of his women acquaintances when the quotations took a dive into the pit. He believes it is because woman seemed to realize that she was speculating and that anything could happen. And so she wasn't so much shocked when it did.

How Man Was Shocked

But man, who, in most instances, seemed to believe Baptists, in his own judgment and was convinced, therefore, that his particular holdings were a "cinch," was stunned almost into unconsciousness when he saw his paper profits or his actual fortune vanish into thin air. He refused at first to believe it and he couldn't understand that his judgment had failed him.

Mr. Beech thinks that recent financial events have done us more good than harm, despite everything. The mistaken idea that poverty had forever been banished by the new way to make easy money had become an obsession. And now people are learning once again to rely on good old-fashioned work for financial returns. But he thinks that woman, now that she has been initiated into the mysteries of Wall street, and the market reports, will go in for finance in a big way, not only as an amateur speculator, but professionally, too.

Position Secure

Of course, the novelist excludes those women who were "carried" by banker and broker acquaintances and were given sure-fire tips. But the women who were taken into brokerage and investment houses, he thinks, will not be content with any other type of work. And, as things improve, he is certain that more and more women will be employed as "contact" women and also will be used to give financial advice. There is no reason, he says, why a woman should not master the intricacies of finance, since she is fast mastering the necessary in almost every field of endeavor. After all, the average man isn't much of an expert at reading financial reports and statements, not much more than is the average woman.

Rex Beach is all for the modern woman, which is quite in order for a novelist who never did create the "clinging vine" type of heroine. She hasn't been half as much intoxicated by her freedom and financial independence as many would have us believe, is his opinion. As to the question whether man will ever get used to a woman rival or competition in the business field, he wisely reserved judgment.

Japanese Hairless Horse May Find Home in American Zoo

By United Press

TOKIO — Not particularly noticed by thousands of visitors, a hairless horse has occupied an enclosure in Tokio's municipal zoo in Ueno park for the last several years. A few days ago, Harold J. Coolidge, a Boston lawyer, in Tokio to present to Tokio Imperial university a collection of American Indian relics from Peabody Museum of Harvard university, saw the animal. There is now a chance that it may cross the Pacific to an American zoo.

Only three hairless horses are known outside Japan, and even here they are not numerous. On Tanega island, off the southeast tip of Japan, a man has been breeding them for 40 years. Originally brought from Korea by a Japanese invader more than three centuries ago, hairless horses were common at one time in southern Japan. They died out, though, and the breeder on Tanega island had to start with a single male, which he crossed with an ordinary horse.

When Coolidge heard that the breeder had seven or eight more, he suggested to the officials of the zoo that they exchange the one they now have with an American zoo for an American bison, which they lack.

Small in stature, like most horses in the Orient, the animal has a dull black skin, free of hairs except for a few scattered patches on its back. There is no mane, and the tail is short and flat. Because the tail resembles that of an ox, the hairless horse is known in Japan as the oxen-horse.

CLEVELAND, O.—It's an ambition of Joseph R. Nutt, national treasurer of the Republican party, to catch a big fighting sailfish.

Someone else may have the job as secretary of the United States treasury, but Joe Nutt envies the man who hauls a big sailfish over the side of a boat on a bright sunshiny day in Florida.

The Cleveland banker, chairman of the board of the Union Trust company, recently turned down an offer of Andrew J. Mellon's job. He doesn't want a political position of any kind. He says a public office holder gets more abuse than he could stand.

Fishing is Nutt's favorite pastime. In the summer he angles for bass in Canada; in winter he goes after sailfish, swordfish and pompano in Florida. He cares little for other kinds of sport.

When he has disposed of the mass of business publications and analysis that accumulate on his desk each day, if he still feels like reading, he prefers a detective story or a popular biography.

NUTT is 62, and though he has been in business since he finished public school in Uniontown, Pa., his eyes are as bright and young as those of a youth of 18. His hair is fluffy and pure white, his complexion ruddy.

He has proved himself to be versatile as a business man. He started his career in the office of a coke manufacturing concern. With little or no knowledge of making profits from the sale of watches, rings and stickpins, he purchased an Akron jewelry store and made a success of it.

Then he turned to banking.

In 1921 he was elected president of the Union Trust Co., and in 1929 became chairman of its board. He is a director of the Van Sweringen Allegheny corporation, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., the White Motor Co. of Cleveland, and the Faultless Rubber Co., and the F. E. Myers Co., of Ashland, O. He is a director and vice president of the Nickel Plate railroad.

Nutt thinks it a good idea for a business man of his age to retire.

"But what would I do?" he asks.

He might travel. In that case Hawaii would be his preference.

"There probably is some good fishing there," he explains.
